Phillips Academy Andover

2002-2003

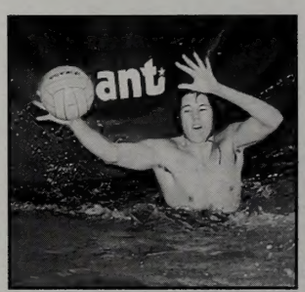

Here it is! After long nights in the basement of Evans and marathon weekends cropping and snapping photos, we could not possibly be more proud of our accomplishments. The Pot Pourri Board 2003 worked harder this year than we ever dreamed was possible. Our goals were to make the book more organized, add more relevant text, and spice up the layouts. I hope you all appreciate our work! Thank you to you all who helped us along the way. 2003, Thank you for making my experience what it has been, and I hope you all treasure our memories!

Dedication

2002-2003

Former history teacher Mary Minard was a selfless member of the Phillips Academy community, constantly striving to improve the school and the world around her. She grew up on this campus as a faculty child, graduated from Abbot Academy in 1955, and continued to devote her life to the service of others.

During her four decades of teaching, Ms. Minard was an innovator who helped bridge the gender divide during the 1973 merger of Abbot and PA, created the school's community service program, and designed the Junior's history course When Strangers Meet. She was a fixture in the history classroom- a legend among students and widely respected among her colleagues. Only a year and a half after she retired from teaching in June 2001, word of her sudden death from cancer at the age of 65 this winter saddened countless students and faculty members who recalled her unparalleled dedication to PA.

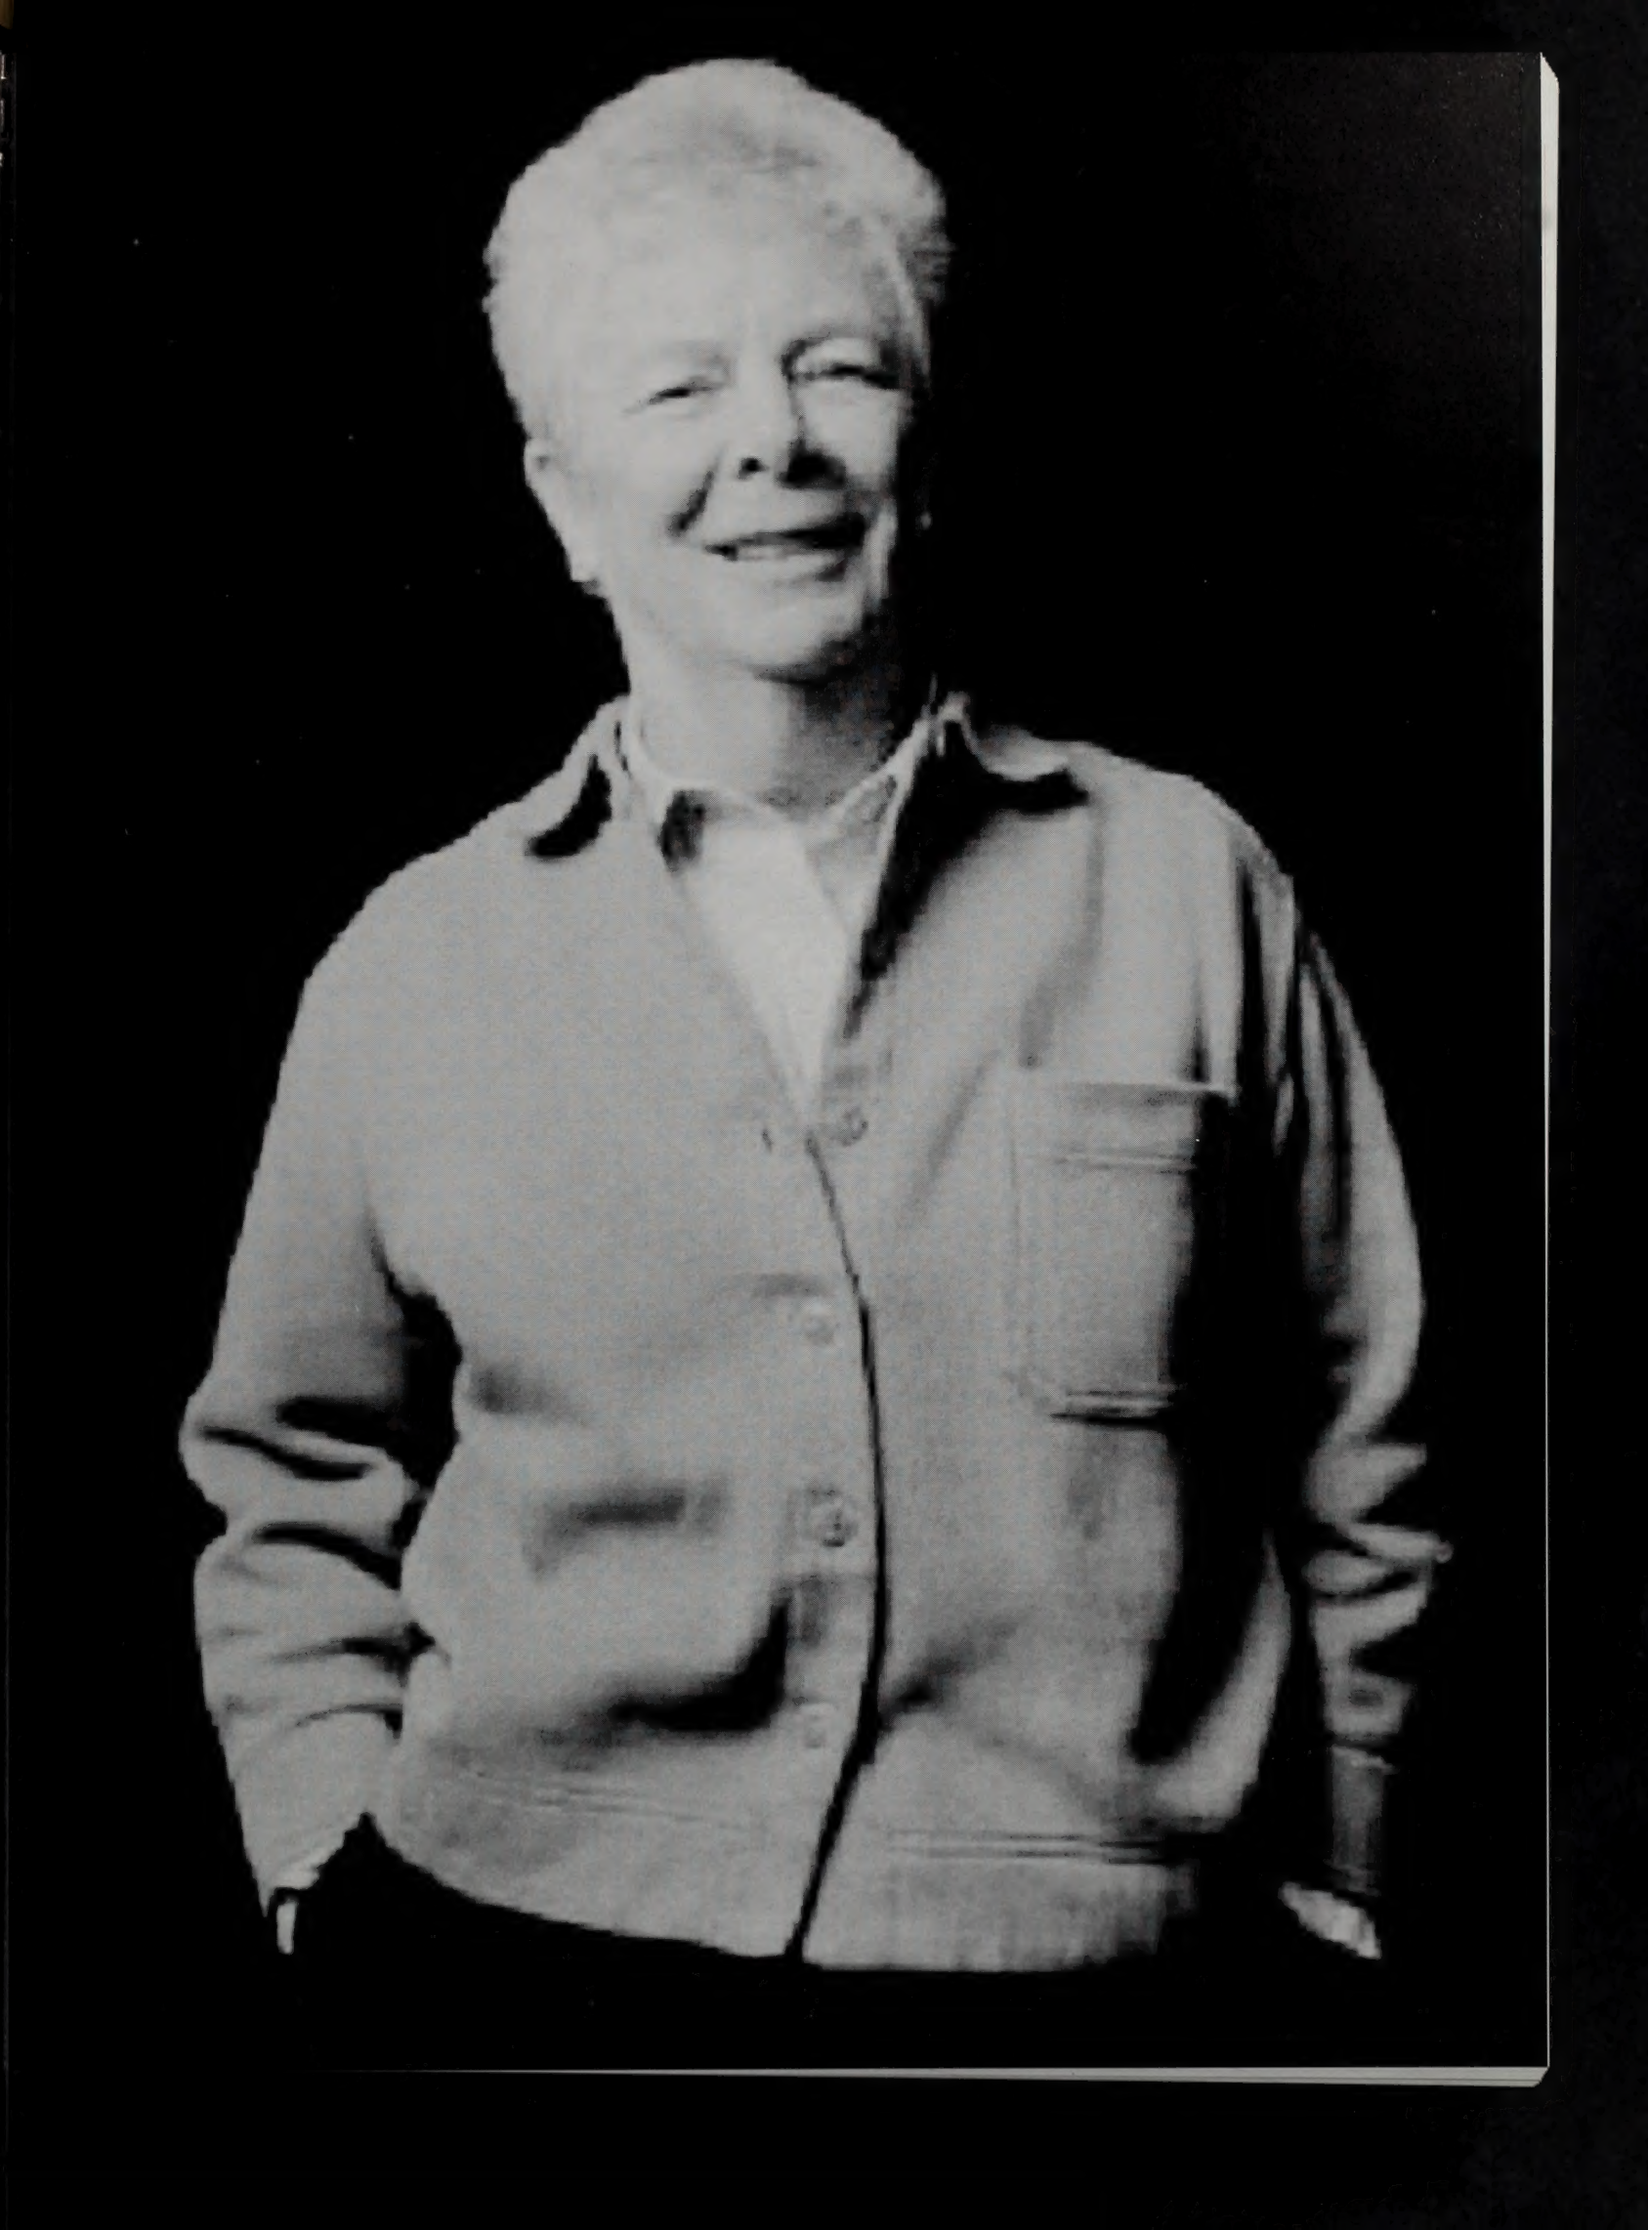

Ms. Minard's retirement left a hole in the school's history department. Her legacy of rigor and compassion in the classroom remained, however. Students were touched by the infectious enthusiasm she displayed for her course material and her ability to understand students' delicate emotions at difficult times. Gaining emotional strength from her presence, her students turned to her following the sudden death of a fellow student. Though she normally appeared quiet and reserved, she reached out to students, allowing them to share their emotions openly in the history classroom.

Ms. Minard's life embodied the academy motto "Non Sibi." She used her education and resources to enrich the lives of others by joining non-profit organizations in the greater community and offering students the tools and programs to continue her work. She routinely found ways to extend herself beyond the walls of Andover, even after her departure from Andover. Of all of her endeavors to help others, she reflected, "I have had not a minute of nostalgia or regret."

And regarding our experiences as her students, neither have we, Ms. Minard. Neither have we.

2002-2003

March 2003

To the Class of 2003:

During my six-month tenure as acting head of school, I have spoken on and off campus and have written occasionally to students, faculty and parents representing this office. Often my comments are suffused with humor, as I believe that laughter is therapeutic and that we Phillips Academy types are a little too intense. But while laughter has its place, I feel that a letter for the Pot Pourri calls for a more somber tone. As you are on the verge of your graduation, I want to use this letter to briefly reflect on a few representative moments from our time together at Andover.

When you four-year seniors were applying to Andover, the world was caught up in the Y2K frenzy. We were told that anything (from the loss of our utilities to the total destruction of the world) was possible when the clock struck midnight. Most average citizens were concerned about greeting the New Year with adequate water, flashlights and batteries. But, just days after your parents received your first PA report cards, midnight January 1 came and went without incident. Had it all been an elaborate hoax perpetrated by merchants? Had we been so effective in preparing for the crisis that we averted it? Ultimately, many of us were feeling foolish for believing the "hype" but we also felt relieved.

Sadly, the euphoria over the Y2K false alarm was short-lived. In January 2000, classes resumed on the hill and we were back to our daily routines. Then came the foggy evening in late February, and the discovery that a prominent student leader had taken his life. "This school and each of us in it will never be the same," we concluded. Indeed, through the end of the year we were still subdued. By the fall, however, the resilience of youth had proven itself: you and your peers were back to your old selves. You had demonstrated the ability to heal and in so doing had helped the adults in the community to move forward.

The fall of 2000 brought a large influx of new lowers to join the returning members of the class of 2003. Then in 2001, new uppers came. The first day of your upper year was September 11, 2001, and again our world seemed to be falling apart. In response to the vulnerability and devastation we felt, the chaplains opened Cochran for silent meditation and prayers, and the faculty and administration kept closer tabs on your travel off campus, removed work duty students from Central Services, tracked national terrorism alerts, and further enhanced our Y2K-prompted disaster recovery plans.

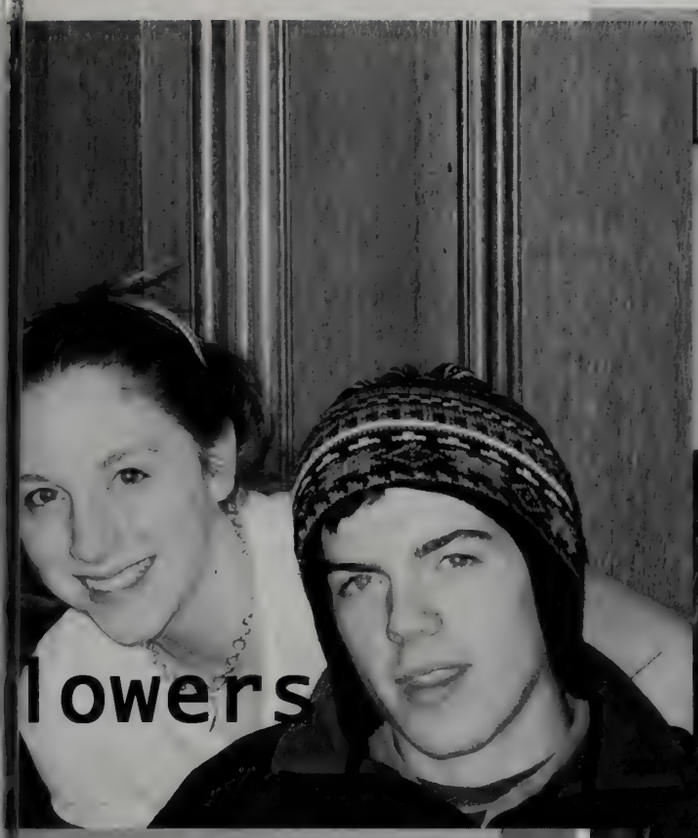

In September 2002, one-year seniors and post-graduates swelled the ranks of the Class of 2003 to 310. Although there have been departures in the fall and winter terms, I am hopeful that all who make it to the beginning of spring term will make it to Commencement. You are highly talented individuals who all demonstrated at the time of admission a capacity to make an impact here while working hard toward your diploma. With only a little more effort you will achieve that goal.

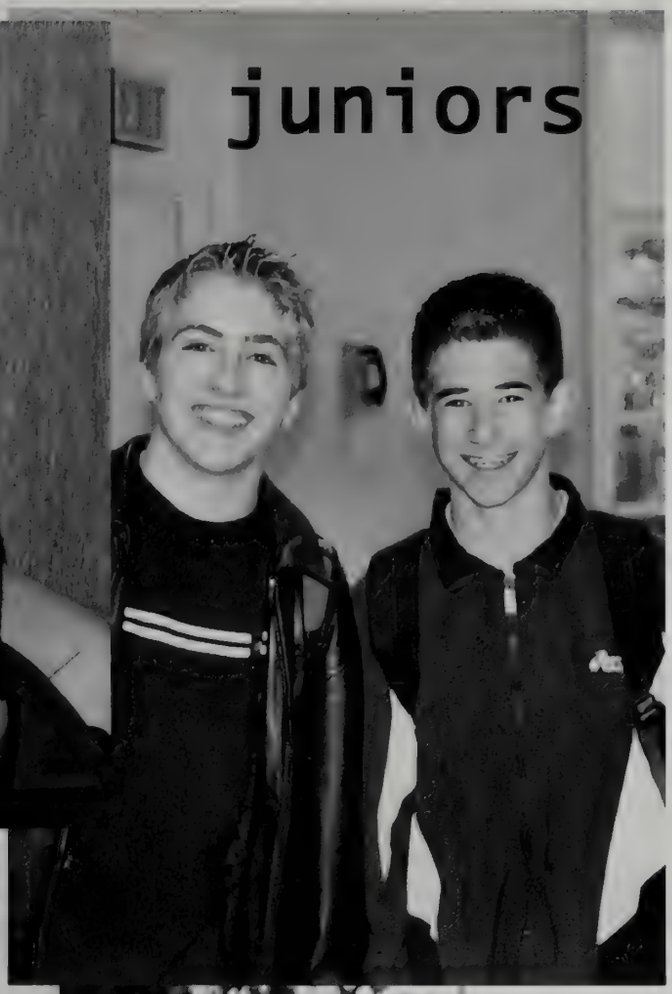

I was recently in San Francisco with members of the Phillips Academy class of 1958. As they discussed plans for their upcoming 45th reunion, two gentlemen confessed to me that while they had kept in touch with one another sporadically, they had not been involved in the school or back on campus for more than 40 years. They seemed a little envious of their classmates who had stayed in contact with the school and they anxiously anticipate their return to Andover in June. While we certainly want to see you in the year 2048 for your 45th reunion, we invite you in the interim to maintain ties with schoolmates (AND with your faculty mentors, who make the institution what it is. Nurture those friendships to keep them strong. And, finally, take care of yourselves. We want you all to be part of the traditional alumni parade for many reunions to come. But more importantly, we want you to enjoy the long, productive and satisfying lives you have prepared for in your time as a student at Phillips Academy.

With all best wishes,

fabulous freshmen, loveable lowers, unruly uppers & superior seniors

"OH SH-, 06!!!" our junior class chanted at the first ever pep-rally of our Phillips Academy career. That same spirit we brought into the new Phelps stadium had originated only two months before.

We arrived at orientation in September and were pumped up by the Blue Key Society. Our Blue Key heads ignited the BIG BLUE pride and spirit within us. The day we walk through Cochran Chapel senior year chanting '06, the BIG BLUE spirit will still be with us. At that moment, all of PA will realize what '06 is all about.

The class of '06 brings superior athletes to mind. In a wide range of sports, both the girls and boys of '06 dominate. Soccer phenomenon, Mike Spiak, broke the school record for most junior goals on Varsity soccer with a total of 9. The girls of '06 strutted into the Powder Puff games, waiting to take it all. Throughout the year, nobody was surprised to see an overwhelming number of juniors on varsity and junior varsity teams.

The highlights of our first year included the tent dance, our first Andover|Exeter weekend in the brand new Phelps stadium and the Sadie Hawkins dance. Being the first junior class to not experience the thrill of burning the A and chasing the "Exies" was a disappointment; however, the fireworks display at the pep-rally made up for it.

Exeter geek day turned out to be a huge success among members of the junior class; who can forget Mason Fried's tiny corduroy suite? Thanks to school spirit, our class representatives, our athletes, and our comedians, our first year at Andover proved to be amazing!

5. Lights out... hey, how many hours of sleep do you get each night?

Ahh yes, lower year. Although some originally considered '05 a dismal class with no potential, we soon proved the contrary.

Lower year was a time of uncertainty. On one hand, we no longer had to put up with the endless mockery known as junior year. On the other hand, we had yet to fully attain the privilege to verbally wallop the younger, more fragile freshman. Our peculiar display of quirks and oddities (such as 7th period football, a sport for all seasons), are some of the qualities that distinguished us from other classes.

Over the past year we have taken advantage of the fact that what we do means close to nothing. We didn't have to worry about colleges, yet we had lost our sense of insecurity as juniors. '06, '04, and '03 possess several of the traits needed to be wonderful classes. However, '05 bares secret weapon: personality—or better yet, volume. '05 is arguably the class with the most character, and undoubtedly the class with the loudest display of enthusiasm. We can be heard far and wide, never ceasing to enliven the situation at hand.

Call us obnoxious, immature, and rambunctious. Call us what you will, but when we come together at pep rallies, there is no end to the madness. Alas, we have a long while ahead of us before we can walk into the chapel and chant '05. Until then, my brothers and sisters of 2005, good luck and God speed.

Well, uppers, we have finally made it through the school year, fondly nick-named the year from hell. Finally we can (legally!) plop ourselves down in Ryley and watch reality mating shows. But before we begin fantasizing about getting PG's in our grade, turning 18, and buying porn, let's just reflect on this past year. Some of us have become members in the selective I-dominated-upper-spring society, while most of us joined the more welcoming ouch-stop-beating-me-upper-spring club. The new uppers formed their own what-is-upper-spring-and-who-am-i brotherhood, but no one knew where to sign up. Now that all that adolescent strife is behind us (of course!), let's celebrate! Ernest Hemingway wrote, "When spring came, there were no problems except where to be happiest." While I'm sure it is easy to be free of problems when lounging in a Parisian cafe day after day, spring in Andover ain't too shabby, either. Let's look back at all we have accomplished and enjoy because we've come quite a long way, baby.

5. We're Almost There

Oh the class of 2003. How far we've come... I sit here and think back to the beginning and a tear comes to my eye. Well, not really. In all honesty though, we've been through a lot. We've endured one of Andover's most tragic years, one of our nation's most tragic years and took our beatings as we made our way through the relentless onslaught of upper spring and senior fall. But we got through it. We lost the burning of the A and the late night prom boat, but we handled it maturely without any complaints ... well... at least we survived. We've seen our network go from a music sharing paradise to the crawling...thing that it is today. But we got through it. We watched as all school e-mails (has anyone seen my keys?) were stripped away from us. We've said goodbye to our French Vanilla Café and hot chocolate in lower right and have even had our precious red paper cups taken away from us. From lowers only commons duty to strange pastries with even stranger filling at senior tea, we have pushed through. Sure, we lost a few... okay a lot of friends along the way, but we picked up some new ones and we moved on. We're a strong class and we have been since we first got together as terrified little freshmen being greeted by a horde of screaming Blue Keys outside the chapel. Maybe we're not the loudest class, but who wants a bunch of unruly, loud, random screaming kids in their class? That's what '05 is for.

Maybe we weren't the best-dressed on Bluesday Tuesday (nah, too easy), but who cares? I don't. Know why? Because we're the seniors! This is our year. The year of '03! We all found our respective places in this school and whether you're tearing up the field as a star varsity wide receiver or tearing up the basement of Evans as an under appreciated section editor of a campus political magazine with a small readership, this school belongs to us. We have heart. We have pride. We are the senior class of 2003. You don't get much for being a senior here but we sure are enjoying what we do have. Besides Ryley on Fridays from 10-11, we get to be the big shots. We get to show what kind of leaders we are and I must say we have been doing a damn good job. Live it up '03. Pretty soon we'll be the young ones again, but for now it's on us. Whether you've been here for four years or one year, this is our year. Let's enjoy what time we have left until that day comes when we celebrate the end and say goodbye. Good luck and represent '03!

Constructing our Futures 2002!

Okay, so there was no burning of the A this year, we had to "stay behind the chains" when cheering on Main Street, and we had to wake up super early and act energetic. Despite these minor setbacks, Orientation 2002 was perfect. Screaming our hearts out, flailing signs on the wall at the intersection of Main and Salem, was one of those moments for us seniors when we could really step back (well, not physically, or else we would fall off) and say, "Wow, we really are seniors." We told ourselves time and time again over the summer that I would be a senior in the fall, but it never clicked until Orientation. Meeting new students, and pretending to be cool and experienced made us feel mature. We finally had a chance to show our pride for Andover, and share all the little tidbits of wise advice we acquired over the years.

Our new kids were great, even if they pretend to be too cool to cheer around the globe. They played along with our name games, and allowed us to feel powerful when giving our tours. Our only complaint: that new kids were the only ones allowed to ride on the trolley tours.

*October 31st struck on a Thursday this year, so most students did not get the chance to go door to door. However, being the resourceful Phillips Academy students that we are, we refused to let homework keep us from celebrating! ## HAPPY EXETER GEEK DAY!

Exeter Geek Day is a Phillips Academy Tradition considered by students to be one of the most fun, spirited days of the year. Students dress up in nerdy red clothing and accessories the Thursday before the Fall Andover/Exeter games in order to imitate our geeky Exeter rivals. This year was the 125th anniversary of the Andover/Exeter games, so students went all out, not only dressing like nerds, but speaking, acting, and tripping in true geek fashion as well! So pull out your calculators, push up your glasses, and enjoy the memories!

Pep Rally

Andover-Exeter

The Pep Rally began at 7PM when the school gathered at the bell tower to hunt for our beloved gorilla, Gunga. The Blue Keys led us in a series of cheers before we headed over to Phelps Stadium, where, unlike past years, the Pep Rally would be held . During the Pep Rally, the Field Hockey girls did their best imitation of slam, followed by the water polo boys, who ran around in speedos and cowboy hats. The soccer girls' performed their annual dance and oddly enough, the soccer boys came on stage pregnant, the cross country girls impressed us with their giant slab of RED meat, and the cross country boys won our hearts by parading all the little Washburns around. Both Slam and Dance got our hearts pumping, while football brought smiles to our faces with a scene from Ruby. Finally, the big night was concluded with a surprise firework show.

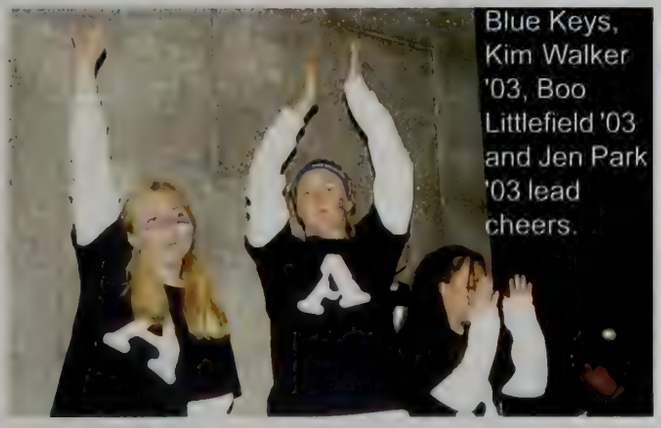

Blue Keys, Kim Walker '03, Boo Littlefield '03 and Jen Park '03 lead cheers.

LOVERS, FIGHTERS & BLUE SHARKS

ANDOVER Exeter

Yes, everyone loves Andover/Exeter weekend. And, yes, everyone loves when the games return to campus and we can beat those Exies on our own turf. But this year's event was particularly memorable for many reasons. 2002 marked the 125th anniversary of the Andover Exeter rivalry, the longest of any secondary school in the country. In addition, the football team finally got to the play Exeter on the new Phelps Stadium, which was donated by, yes, an Exie. We tried and failed not to be impressed. At the annual pep rally, in addition to fabulous team performances, were the most dazzling array of fireworks that the school had ever seen. On the day of games, we could not have been prouder of how well our teams played. Our two wins over Exeter proved that even after 125 years we've still go it.

SADIE

The Sadie Hawkins Dance has something for everyone. For the Juniors, it is an excuse to spend the night with those special someones they've been crushing on since Orientation. For the upperclassmen, it is an opportunity to forget work for a few hours and have a little fun- dress up, go crazy, and laugh at the freshmen.

it is the event everyone looks forward to. in the midst of winter term deariness, our first chance for fun out of doors. this year was perhaps even more anticipated because of the cancellation of last year's trip. everyone made up for lost time, however, and partied as if it were spring...senior spring in fact. upon arrival, we found the tubing runs extra slippery and burgers on the grill. on the hill we reached speeds, according to our calculations, of over 40mph. and when we got cold and wet from our adventures, we headed inside to the dance party at the lodge. the music was loud and bad, but the heat was definitely on full blast. it was so hot, in fact, that everyone lost all their clothes. not that we're complaining. that's the thing about winter carnival. you never really know what's going to happen. and that's why we'll be back next year.

Exeter

Unfortunately for the Andover Varsity and JV athletes and the five busloads of their fans, Andover|Exeter Winter 2003 ended the same way it began: cold and gloomy. Arriving home to Academy Hill, students could not help but feel upset about the losses in the last two games of the evening; despite valiant efforts on both teams' behalves, the boys of Varsity Hockey and Basketball did not pull through. Nonetheless, we did not hang our heads. With sweeping victories in Girls' Varsity Hockey and Basketball earlier in the day, Andover held its ground in Exie territory.

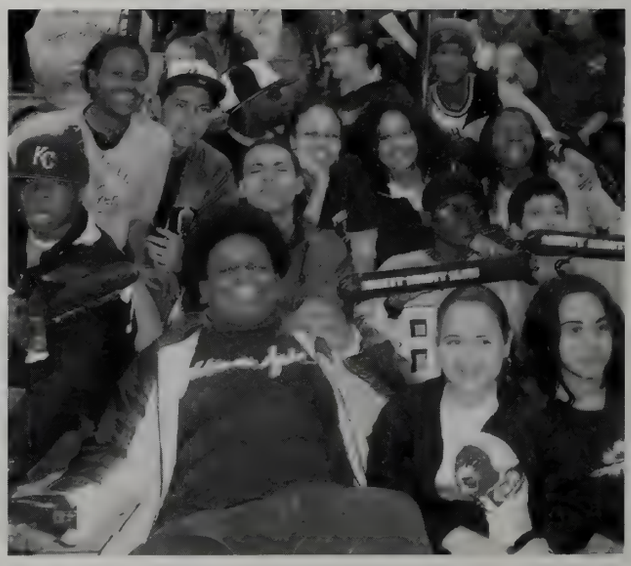

Although it was a bit chilly and snowy up north, the inclement weather did not dampen everyone's spirits. Like always, Andover students swept through the Exeter campus in a sea of blue clothing, face paint, and noise-makers. Our flamboyant attire, enthusiastic cheers, and respectable athletic performances proved once again that Andover is indeed the better school- but we could have told you that beforehand.

Boys' Cross-Country

Andover Boys' Cross-Country, following a disappointing season in which the Blue finished third at Interschols, ending a two-year championship run, roared back in 2002. With great speed up front and a formidable pack, they left a mark on their prep school competition. Returning only two runners from last year's varsity seven, the team's hopes lay upon new Upper Josh Wolfe '04 and PG Garrett Vaslet '03.

The Boys in Blue started the season off at the Canterbury Invitational. Wolfe and Vaslet both performed admirably, taking third and fifth, respectively, leading the team to the overall championship. Signs of a promising season could be seen in the fact that Andover placed all seven of their runners in the top twenty. The next week they placed in the middle of the pack at the prestigious Manchester Invitational, in sixth overall, but discouragingly, behind Exeter. They looked to get back on track in Wallingford, CT where they defeated the defending champion Choate team. Wolfe again dazzled; as did the rest of the team, finishing eight varsity runners in front of the Choate number four. The squad completed the rest of the season with only one loss, coming at the hands of a gifted St. Paul's team. A win against Exeter, in the final tune-up before Interschols, set the stage for a possible New England Championship. Interschols, however, did not turn out as hoped. The team did not turn in the solid finishes they had counted on and came in 4th place to very strong St. Paul's, Choate, and Exeter teams. Co-captain Taylor Washburn '03 led the team finishing in 10th place, followed by Wolfe, Vaslet, Jack McCallum '03, Adam Kapor '04, Tom Barron '04, and J.J. Feigenbaum '04.

The Boys in Blue should not let their finish take anything away from their outstanding season. The league, as pointed out by both Coach Stableford and Coach Domina, is much deeper and more competitive than in years past and the teams that beat the Blue were all very talented. In looking ahead to next year, the team will return four of its top seven and gain several excellent runners from the talented JV ranks. Though they have their work cut out for them, another Andover championship season would not be at all surprising.

This year, our cross-country team showed up for preseason and trained harder and stronger than ever. Several new additions, namely Katie Faulkner, Lissy Robie, and Anne Sharp, coupled with last year's varsity squad show the strength of a championship team. The returning seniors Kaitlin Ainsworth, Heather Finn, Caitlin Littlefield, Kathryn Moore, Anne Riordan, and Sam Weisz have been leading the team through an outstanding season. Our first win of the season came at the Canterbury Invitational, where the Big Blue fought through hot weather and unbelievable hills to come out victorious. Copying this trend, we continued to dominate through the rest of the season. We finished the regular season undefeated! We beat Exeter in our dual meet, but fell second to them in interschols. # Field Hockey

den, S; Smith, J; Minahan, , K; Kelly, W; Johnson, C;

The Phillips Academy 2002 Field Hockey team concluded the regular season UNDEFEATED!!! Our success can be attributed to the enthusiasm of the newcomers and the improvement and leadership of the returners. We began this season skeptical because we had lost 11 members from last year's team. Fortunately, our returners came back ready to kick butt, and we got some new powerhouses. Our nine seniors acted as vital forces on the team. Our new goalies Kate Leonard '03 and Kathleen Minahan '03 maintained an outstanding statistic of merely 4 goals against us in the regular season. Other new seniors to the team Jenny Smith and Barbara Badman stepped onto the field as scoring machines, immediately putting balls into the back of the net. In coach Dolan's opinion, senior returner Sarah Carden examplified the word "hustle" in every way. Lindsey Locks, another senior returner acted as a wall on defense and an integral part of the midfield. On defense, 3-year seniors Trudi Cloyd, Cortney Tetrault, and Nyssa Liebermann were a powerhouse that few teams could compare to. Our time playing together created a bond that no opponent could break. We, the members of the big blue Field Hockey team, will always remember our undefeated12-0-2 season along with our cheesey pasta dinners, our wagon ride at the Tetraults', and all our time spent together on and off the field. Girls, never forget: "there ain't no mountain high enough" for us to overcome!

FOOTBALL

The 2002 Big Blue football team had only five returning starters from the very successful 6-2 team of last fall. Joining Captain Zak DeOssie, backs Kyle Murphy and Adjatay Nyadjroh, and linemen Nate Malo and Dean Boylan in September were seven new post-graduates and a cast of seniors and underclassmen hungry to earn spots in the line-up.

The first game was against Loomis Chaffee. The Big Blue launched an intensive aerial attack on the Loomis defense. Loomis came back strong in the second half, closing the gap to win a touchdown. The Big Blue came away with a 41-22 win in the season opener.

Next was Hotchkiss. The Andover defense struggled to contain Hotchkiss' fierce running game, and lost their first home game, 41-15.

Andover put the loss behind them as they prepared for Choate the next week. Andover was particularly strong in the fourth quarter, wearing down Choate's defense to secure the win.

Next was Kent School on a rainy Saturday night at home. It was a close game, and PA battled to the end, only to lose a tough one. Blue came up short 29-14.

Andover then took on the NMH Hoggers. The never-say-die PA squad battled back to take the lead by three points in the fourth quarter, but NMH responded to score the winning touchdown with two minutes left in the game.

Hosting Deerfield on Parents' Weekend, the Big Blue fell behind early 7-0, again allowing the opponents a "short-field" touchdown after a turnover. A Deerfield interception led to another TD early in the fourth quarter and a 14-0 advantage for the Green. A two-point conversion made it 14-8.

Undefeated Tabor eagerly waited to get a piece of the Big Blue. Right away DeOssie launched a long ball to Rory Gallagher in the end-zone to put Andover up 7-0. Shortly after DeOssie threw another strike to Justin Gallagher lengthen the lead 14-0.

The last game of the season was the best game for the big blue. It was the 125th Anniversary of Andover Exeter Football and the new Phelps stadium was packed. The Big Blue came in as underdogs. Exeter had a strong record and high hopes of making the Prep Bowl. DeOssie set the tone early in the game by blocking a punt, and then leading the offense into the end-zone with a touchdown pass to Justin Gallagher. Exeter came firing back with an 85-yard touchdown run. Exeter regained control and threw a touchdown pass to put the Big Blue down at the half 14-6. Andover came flying out in the second half, dominating the Big Red by controlling the ball for a majority of the 2nd half. On a huge drive, Andover was deep into Exeter's territory when DeOssie threw a strike in the end-zone to a leaping Tyler Simms. Then DeOssie ran in the two point conversion to tie the game at 14 all. In a confusing ending, the two teams tied 14 to 14, but the Big Blue didn't hang their heads for they had come out with a huge moral victory that day by dominating Exeter in the second half.

I would like to give a special thanks to my best friends and teammates for a wonderful season. It was the best bunch of guys I could hope for. I wish them all good luck in the future. Thanks to Coach Mo and Lou. It's been a great four years of football and good luck in the future.

- Zak DeOssie, Captain '03

Boys' Soccer

Showing his agility, Igor Echave '03 saves a ball heading out of bounds. (Below)

The 2002 Andover Boy's Varsity soccer team had an unbelievable journey that took 18 young men and a group of willing and able coaches and managers from humble beginnings to an unbeatable powerhouse status. A group of young and inexperienced boys lost their first three starts to commence the 2002 season. Skepticism and anxiety, however, failed to halt the Big Blue determination. A strong core of senior leaders, headed by co-captains Tony Pucillo and Nick Franchot, took the team by the reins and led by example.

After reviving themselves from the initial slow start and loss of several key players from injury, notably seniors Spencer Bush-Brown and Kanyi Maqubela, the team found themselves stacking up result after result. The return from a summer injury of Franchot complemented the goal-hungry freshman youth of Michael Spiak. Franchot led the team in scoring with ten goals, followed by Spiak with nine (freshman scoring record). The team's ability to combine senior maturity with the enthusiasm of four freshmen standouts catapulted the team into New England Championship contention. Victories over NMH, #1 ranked Deerfield and a final 4-0 thrashing of Exeter capped a 9-0-2 streak to end the season. These victories were good enough to secure the infamous Dunbar Cup, butwere not enough in the end to win a bid into the New England Championship tournament. Seniors Nick Franchot,Matthew Smellie and Igor Echave were, however, all rewarded for their season-long efforts with invitations to the league's All-Star game. The talent and leadership that the seniors displayed throughout the year will be sorely missed. Next year, underclassmen standouts, especially Carey Hynes '04 and David Sheldon '04, will lead a group of young talent to what the Big Blue hopes will be a successful year. In the end, despite falling just short, the Andover Blue left everything on the field and gave 100% to close the season undefeated in their last eleven games. Coach Scott commented that "We improved steadily throughout the season and played our best soccer in November. That's what's supposed to happen, and we did it." The 2002 Andover Boys' Varsity Soccer team was certainly a testament to the word "team" and will be remembered as champions.

Girls' Soccer

Coming off from an exciting near-championship season (NEPSAC finalists 2001), the Girl's Varsity Soccer team approached the fall of 2002 with high optimism. The PA girls were confident that with a returning squad of fifteen, including ten seniors, experience would not be a problem. Welcoming the addition of post-graduates Kelly Lannan and Julia Totosy de Zepenek as well as several new underclassmen faces, the girls eagerly anticipated the season under the coaching of newcomers Andy Boger and Steve Carr, temporarily filling in for Head Coach Lisa Joel, who is on maternity leave.

We prepared for the opening game against long time rival and powerhouse Loomis Chaffee. Even with aggressive play in all ends of the field, the match ultimately resulted in a loss to the two-time champions in the final minutes with a score of 3-2.

Despite this minor setback, the team maintained high hopes for the season, and continued our aggressive play. We turned not only to the captains but to all the seniors.

We finished our difficult regular season games with a record of 5-4-5, and headed to the NEPSAC quarterfinals with great enthusiasm. We played our hearts out, but unfortunately lost in overtime 2-1.

We want to thank the entire girls' varsity soccer team and coaches for a terrific season and great memories!

Girls' Volleyball

The Girls' Volleyball team this year showed real promise with eight returning players:  and four strong additions to the team. Led by captains Justine Wardrop '03 and Danny Dumond '03, the team finished its season 8-3

We were seeded 6th for the end of season tournament. Although the team did not advance beyond the first round of the tournament, we played a great game, and are still extremely proud of our successful season.

We lost a heartbreaker to the undefeated Exeter in an extremely close 5 game match, but it was our most exciting game all season.

We are also proud of our All Stars this year: Mimi Hanley '04, Jessie Daigneault '04, and Devon Dickerson '04.

Thank you to the team and our fans for a fabulous season!

Boys' Waterpolo

This season was a building year for the boys' waterpolo team. Losing star players from last season, we found ourselves struggling to score. Our seniors provided great leadership. Bryce Kaufman '03 came into his own this season, serving as a vital part of out offense and defense. Eric Chung '03 was a great sprinter, and his speed proved vital to the team's efforts. Lalit Kalani '03 and first year player Peter Stetson '03 showed a true love for the game. Their enthusiasm added tremendously to the team's energy. Captain David Hill's skills and attitude proved beneficial as well.

With only four seniors on the team, our underclassmen had great opportunities to contribute as well. Rob Anderson '06 and Jamie Neuwirth '06 both showed extreme talent for such young players. Although opponents double-teamed our holeman, Aaron Stroble '04, he still proved to be an all-star in the water. Paul Randt '04 showed great promise to be a senior leader next fall, Jed Kelley '04 had an outstanding season as a first year goalie, and Dave Morse '04 utilized his left hand to be a real threat from the weak side.

At 2-10 and without the heart and soul of a struggling offense, Coleman Lyons '03, we were in a hole; fate did not look like it could get much worse. But backed by an unwavering belief in ourselves and coach, and unfaltering support from students and faculty, we turned a dismal season around and a few people's heads along with it.Two days after our 78-35 drubbing of Tilton Academy, Thayer fell victim to our all-out, hardnosed grit: 98-96 in overtime and in front of their own fans. After the win at Thayer, we were a different team. With Coleman Lyons healthy again and the team running on all cylinders, we ran undefeated through the next ten days. Even though our Cinderella-like winning streak ended against Worcester Academy, we never backed down: not to New Hampton's twin towers, not to Brewster's high flying attack, and not to each other.

After playing second fiddle for two years, Adjatay Nyadjroh '03 and Captain Zak DeOssie '03 led by example. But we won as a team: every player contributed in their own way. Whether it was a Colin Liotta '03 baseline charge, Marc Anderson's '03 free throw bank shooting, Rory Gallagher's '03 unconventional pass-shot play, a three point bomb from Will Heidrich '03, every senior played a significant role. Looking ahead, the future for Coach Mo and the program is bright: fab-freshman Joey Lokitis '06 and Tyler Simms '04 will spear-head the back-court while Adam Crabtree '04 and Knef King '04 may bolster the wings and front court.

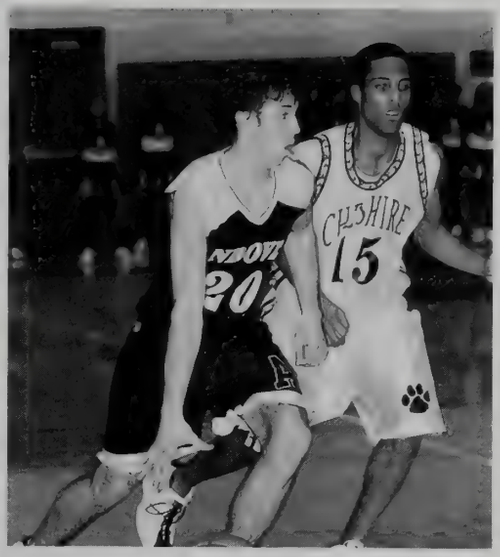

We were given an opportunity to make something out of nothing, but we did not miss our chance; we lost ourselves in the proverbial music of the hardwood floor and each moment, and never looked back.

Girls' Basketball

The Girls' Varsity Basketball Team started in November with a ton of enthusiasm and high expectations for their 2002-2003 season. They looked to their returning seniors — Captain Danielle Vardaro, Meg Coffin, Krystal Freeman, and Cortney Tetrault — to lead the way for the Lady Blue for their last time. The team also returned a number of essential players, including Kat Conlon, Mimi Hanley, and Jess Daigneault all from '04, and Sarah Chang '05. Newcomers, Danielle DeNufrio '03, Rachel Shack '04, Laurel Sticklor, and Nell Beattie both from '05, and freshmen Christa Vardaro and Jevan Jammal, added more spark and talent. Together, they created a team where skill, competitiveness, hard work, and each member's individual strengths would form their foundation for success. Their season started off strong as the blue rose victoriously over talented teams like Loomis-Chaffee, Milton, Worcester, and BB&N, and accomplished a huge home-court win over Exeter mid-season. An early loss to Tabor, an annually challenging rival, forced PA to adjust their style of play by focusing more on key fundamentals. While maturing tremendously as a team, the Big Blue relied heavily on their intense defense, strength under the boards, three-point shooting, and quick transitions to thread together many consecutive wins. The Big Blue finished their last regular season game with an unforgettable win during Andover/ Exeter. Their energy now shifts towards the tournament where they will be seated as a top ranked squad. The Lady Blue spends their last hours of practice preparing for optimal tournament play. They hope to bring home the New England title, a goal they've been shooting for all season. Each team member is confident that their talent, determination, and resilience of spirit, will get them exactly where they want to be.

Boys'Hockey

One hundred and eighty degrees of separation. Its been a season to "Ou" and "Ah" at. A little finesse here, some power there, but most of all, a lot of heart and effort. The members of this team have worked tirelessly all summer and fall to prepare for these twenty six games that make up our season.

This year's team featured five returning seniors. Paul Chiozzi, a relentless and driven guy who showed up every-day to give his best. Tom Kennedy "TK" also brought his speed and agility to the line up. Big Bad Bruising Dean Boylan was determined to clean a few clocks, driving his large frame across the ice like a battering ram. John Doherty included his style points while raking in a number of key points at critical times. And Drew Ward, a player made by the team he was surrounded by.

A few additions were made to this team. Senior Nick Mazzolini checked in with grace and some jaw droppers to lead the team in points. PG Joe Adams was the true work horse of the team, out playing his opponents in all aspects of his game. PG Pete Smith barreled his way through defenders, using his solid stature to move the puck around the ice. PG Garrett Vaslet keyed in with some speed and all around skill to the offense. Also, a few additions were made to the freshman pool, who will bring this team to even new heights.

Upper goalie Cory Schneider hailed as being the backbone to this team. He came up huge in a number of games, and allowed this team to make it as far as they have come. Stephen Turro, Kylle Kucharski, and Ben Hoerner rounded the team off and made the group a complete package. I would especially like to thank Mr. Turro for his long hours spent in the sharpening room, he did so without dismay.

I would like to thank the coaches Dean Boylan and Tom Guden for their encouragement and support. Also a huge thanks goes out to Mike Kuta for his support and unconditional respect and regard for this team.
Cheers, and good luck next year guys.

Girls' Hockey

The Andover Girls' Ice Hockey team has had one of the most successful seasons in the history of its program. With a present record of 16-6-1, the Big Blue aspired to gain a position in the New England Tournament. Critical wins over top ranked teams such as Nobles, Milton, Loomis and Tabor, have given the girls the confidence needed to compete for the crown.

The team began its season with a second place finish in the annual Taft Invitational Holiday Tournament, compared to a sixth place finish in the 2001-2002 season. After graduating only four seniors, the roster was strong, thanks to returning players like Britney McKenna '05, the team's leading scorer, and stellar goaltender O'Hara Shipe '05. In addition, heavy recruiting paid off for the Big Blue. Joining last years nine returners are three PGs: Kelly Lannan, Kate Leonard, and Alix Warren; four freshmen: Megan Montecalvo, Julie Wadland, Lindsay Moramarco, and Melissa Tetreau; and two lowers: Lindsay Baker and Lauren Seno.
The girls now head to Exeter on Saturday, hoping to score another win for the big blue.

Nordic Skiing

This was an extraordinarily successful year for the Nordic ski team. After a series of 'transition years,' it all came together this year. The mixture of several great additions to the team, including a new coach, Keith Robinson, who introduced a more structured way of organizing speed and endurance practices, and the returning members, all contributed to the success. With strong conditioning and lots of snow for training, Andover's girls' team has surpassed expectations for a school that is not a 'ski' school, and become tough competition for many schools in the league. Newcomers Meg Sullivan '04 and Kendra Allenby '05 skied for the first time this year, getting progressively faster and together with the returning team of Captain Jackie Brown '03, April Warren '04, Gen Desaulniers '04 and Helen Fitzmaurice '05 the girls achieved impressive results. Besting Proctor, Vermont Academy, Putney, and Northfield Mount Hermon in the league championships, a feat that never used to be in reach.

The boys' team had a solid rebuilding year. Veterans Scott Silverstein '04 and Travis Green '04 saw their intense training and motivation pay-off as they moved into the top half of the league's skiers. The rest of the boys' team consisted of juniors and lowers, Miles Canaday '04, Cage Brewer '05 and Julian Jacobson '06 to name a few, who were introduced to the sport this year and hope to continue to add depth to the boys team for next year.

Since the racing team is only losing one senior, Jackie Brown '03, the future for the Nordic team looks strong. The coach and captain, who both have to move on next year, only wish that they could stay to watch the team's continued improvement and success. --Jackie Brown '03

Boys' Squash

The Andover Boys' squash team has had its most triumphant season in years. We finished 13-1 in the season, with our only loss coming down to the wire. Captains Will Simonton and Will Walter, both '03, played at the top two slots the entire season. Both were very successful at their positions in closing out their careers at Andover. Elliot Beck '05 had an undefeated season at number three and will be playing at the top of the ladder next yea Jeff Wessler '03 enjoyed a flourishing campaign at number four, finishing with only two losses. Dan Wagman, the freshmen prodigy, endured a rough first season but is looking to work hard over the summer and improve his game to get ready for next fall. Harry B. Goldstein had a good season at number six and lifted the team throughout the season with his over-the-top spirit. At number seven, David Morse '05 had a successful season despite losing a heartbreaker at Belmont Hill.

We would like to thank Mr. Cone for a great season and for all of his coaching and support. We now head to Yale for the interscholastics with high hopes and expectations. Good luck to for next year.

Girls' Squash

The Girls' Varsity Squash team, under the guidance of Coach Tom Hodgson, upheld the motto "Win with grace, lose with dignity." Despite having what most would classify as a "rebuilding" year, due in large part to the fact that the team only boasted two returning players Emily O'Brien '03 and Diana Grace '05, the Big Blue improved in leaps, bounds, and lunges.

Numerous highlights of the season set this year's team apart in terms of spirit. Andover competed in a season opening tournament at Harvard before Winter break, and although the team's inexperience showed in the final results, the girls faired reasonably well, winning as many matches as they lost. Gutsy performances against the Nobles team mid-season helped secure a 6-1 victory as well as demonstrate how much the team had improved over the course of the first half of the season. Although squash lost to Exeter in the last match of the season, all the girls showed noticeable improvement. Throughout the season, the Big Blue trained hard, ran numerous flights of stairs, drilled, lunged, and maintained a positive attitude.

New faces on the Varsity roster this season included Charlotte MacMillan '05, Skylar Washburn '05, Cara Ruccolo '05, Pam Risseeuw '03, Julie Bramowitz '03, and Phoebe Rockwood '03. The competition in the girls' squash league proved highly competitive, and although the girls did not win all of their matches, their work ethic and positive attitudes were admirable. Throughout the season, younger members of the team gained valuable experience; their hard work will be rewarded in years to come. -Emily O'Brien '03

Boys' Swimming

The boys swim team had an amazing run this year, going 6-1 in the regular season. Andover seniors led the team: Co-Captain David Hill '03 starred in the IM and breastroke events, while fellow Co-Captain Brian Fiske '03 continued to show his mastery of all four strokes. Gavin Kuangparichat '03 proved he was more than just a butterflyer, contributing to many of the freestyle events and relays; he was joined in the free by Eric Chung '03, who showed solid improvement, as well as varsity newcomer Peter Stetson '03. Bryce Kaufman '03 was worth his weight in gold in the backstroke, producing solid performances all year, while J.C. MacMillan '03 continued his domination of the diving event, coming within shooting range of the school record on one occasion.

The uppers were more than able to contribute to an already strong team, with solid performances from distance swimmer Aaron Stroble '04, perennial sprinter Paull Randt '04, and all-around freestyle man Thomas Yeung '04. The team will be expecting a lot from these guys next year, but they're certainly up to the challenge.

It wasn't just the upperclassmen doing all the work, as Tom Lesnick '05 and Jeff Zhou '06 showed by racking up a string of victories in the backstrokes and freestyles. And who could forget the antics of Thatcher Clay '04, Jamie Newirth '06, Chris Donahue '05, Rob Anderson '06, and Charlie "crazy abs" Thornton '06.

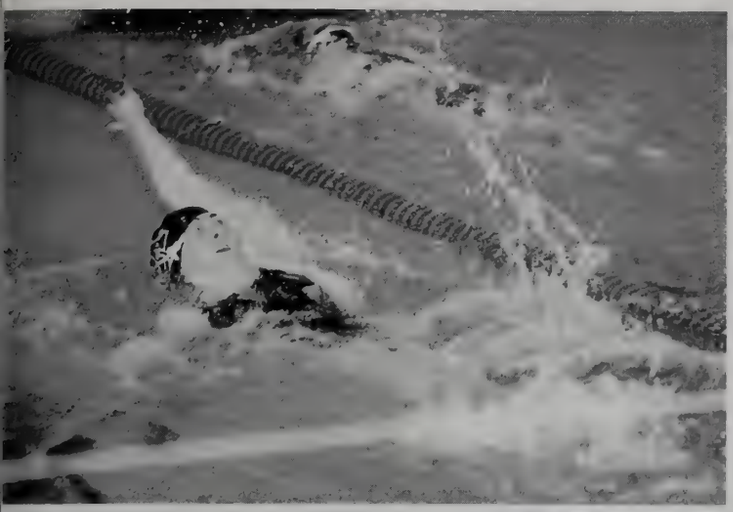

While we were disappointed that we lost in a white-knuckler to Exeter, we look forward to beating them at Interschols. Looking back on the season, we will remember our dual meet domination and the culmination of our season at Interschols, but most of all, we will remember all the fun times we had getting there. --Brian Fiske and Dave Hill, '03

Girls' Swimming

As we head into tapering for the Interscholastic Championships to wrap up our 2002-2003 swimming season, it is hard not to look back and realize all the hard work that has taken place over the past two months. When we jumped into the pool on the first day with almost all of our returning team plus three new freshmen, one lower, one upper, and one post-graduate, our sights were all on a repeat New England Championship victory. It is hard to imagine trainging with any other group of girls. They all worked hard in the water, cheered for each other during meets and practices, and really enjoyed each other's company. The season was full of laughs and happy faces as we began our season with a decisive win over Loomis Chaffee and rounded out our dual meet season undefeated with a romp over perennial rival, Exeter. There were a lot of great times, but definitely some tough ones too, where injuries, sickness, and the winter blues threatened to stop us. However, with the support of each member of the team and the fantastic coaches, we pulled through and are only looking up now to enjoy our last week together as we train to head over to Deerfield, and bring home another trophy to sit next to last year's. It has been my favorite swimming season ever, and I know the team would say that it has been a very fun and rewarding one as well. They deserve nothing less for all the hard work and fast times they put in. --Sarah Demers '03

Boys' Track

The 2003 indoor season was expected to be a rebuilding season, with so many members of last year's team graduating. But the team pulled through and we had a second consecutive undefeated season. In particular, David Sheldon tied the upper record for 300 yards, and Anwell Lanfranco set a new upper record for the shot put.

The team performed unbelievably at the Dartmouth Relays and the Greater Boston Track Club Invitational. Lee Rattigan '03 led the sprinters along with O'Shea Galan and David Sheldon, both '04. The distance squad – led by Piotr Brzezinski, Chimaobi Izeogu, and Chris and Jon Lanterman, all '03– proved to be as strong as ever, ceding few points to difficult competition. Underclassmen also proved to be strong with great performances by JJ Feigenbaum, Jon Hillman, Adam Kapor, and Dan Serna. In the Hurdles and Field Events, stars included Matt Longley '03 in the pole vault and Justin Loffredo '03 in the Shot Put, but consisted mostly of Uppers: Joshua Barclay, Bill Beregi, David Coit, Alex Dent, Richard Besen, Alex Hardt, Gordon Hoople, Anwell Lanfranco, Martin Quinones. Unfortunately, injury and sickness plagued the team; distance stars Joshua Wolfe '04 and Jack McCallum '03 were unable to compete for a great deal of the season.

With many of the Varsity team's scorers returning and the phenomenal depth of the team into the Junior Varsity, prospects for next year are good. I wish next year's team the best of luck. With the hard work and determination of the athletes and coaching staff, we have, as Aristotle prescribed, made excellence not an act, but a habit.

Girls' Track

The girls' track team had an overall successful season ending up with 4 wins, 2 losses and one undecided competition with our friends in red. Throughout the season Courtney McBride '03, Jackie Latina '04 and Captain Katie Dlesk '03 led the way in the sprints, both in the 50 and the 300. They also made up 3/4 of a relay team that along with Anne Riordan '03 beat all the college girls at the Greater Boston Track Club Invitational early in the season. Cassie Tognoni '04 took over for Riordan after she was injured and the relay team continued to dominate in the 4x400m at dual meets. Tognoni was also the leading high jumper while Latina and Becca Howe '06 took care of the long jump. In the hurdles, newcomer Marty Schnure '06 and hurdle queen Anne Riordan were stars with Dlesk also contributing towards the end of the season. In the middle and long distance events Lissie Robie '04 and Howe were big scorers as was Hoppy Maffione '04, who faithfully ran the 2-mile every week. Lizzy Fraser '04 was also a distance standout in the early season but unfortunately she too was plagued by injury. The team had its ups and downs this winter but the team ended on a high note at Exeter with several excellent performances. In final relay especially, the girls came back from a fall to beat the Exies and showed the amazing spirit and drive that was present throughout the season on the girls track team.

Wrestling

The Andover wrestling team continued to build its strength throughout a tough but successful 2002-2003 season. Among its greatest achievements, the Big Blue acquired a winning dual meet record of 10-8-1, having falling short of this mark for the last two years. In the Class A League Championships, Andover came away in sixth place, with seven wrestlers placing in the top five of their weight classes. Gabe Worgaftik '06 (112lb) and Mark Shvartsman '05 (119lb) both reached the finals and earned second place finishes. Leon Fay '04 (135lb) and Jeff Peña '04 (130lb) placed third, while Nick Constantino '04 (125lb), Taylor Yates '04 (145lb), and John Atay '03(189lb) came home with fifth-place medals. The team was young this year, with only three seniors. But the six underclassmen earning medals certainly bodes well for next season.

Under the Bed is an improvisational troupe. There are nine members who are Nick Pappadopoulos, Boo Littlefield, Abbe Anderson, Zak Cafritz, Becca Doyle (not pictured), Terry Lang, Alex Colaianni, Gardy Gould, and Steve Travierso. We do five or so performances a year including Grasshopper Night and Rabbit Cabaret. This year we started Improv Workshops, where people who are not in the troupe can participate in our games. We also got bowling shirts!

Student sentiments: What's your favorite part of the arts on campus?

Shana Davis '03

Under the Bed. I love improv! I love it when they ask the random questions to the audience and people just throw out the most ridiculous things.

Lucy Keating '03

The community that's found backstage at shows like Grasshopper and Rabbit Cabaret is unique and cool. I love that aspect of the arts.

In Skip

The group that was decided on this year is made up of 16 very talented, enthusiastic and, if we do say so ourselves, attractive people. We were stoked to get in to Grasshopper Night with "Steal My Kisses," a song written by Ben Harper, and arranged by Steve Travierso, and we think that the show went really well.

This is a great year for the Andover's co-ed a cappella group. We get along well; have a lot of fun, and sound pretty good. The seniors are excellent leaders, and the superb underclassman representation will assure that InSkip stays strong in the future. And, as our motto goes, "We may not be perfect, but at least we're not as flat as your mom."

Phillips Academy Orchestras

Chamber Orchestra accompanying Cantata

The orchestral organizations at Phillips Academy are comprised of three smaller chamber orchestras and one comprehensive symphony. This fall 2002, the Phillips Academy Symphony performed Rimsky-Korsakov's Symphony Espanola, a work consisting of five contrasting movements written in the Spanish style. The Academic Chamber Orchestra usually accompanies various soloists, ranging from violin concertos to guitar extravaganzas. Both the Academic Chamber Orchestra and Symphony are under the direction of William Thomas.

Chamber Music Society

Phillips Academy Chamber Music Society presents three concerts throughout a year. It has about 50 musicians participating every term. Repertoires vary from Baroque music to Contemporary classical music.

Our repertoire is from the standard concert band and wind ensemble literature, and we have one concert a term.

JazzBand

The Jazz Band includes 15-20 woodwinds and brass plus 4-6 rhythm section instruments (guitar, piano, bass, and drums). This ensemble performs both traditional and modern big band songs, including the music of Duke Ellington, Count Basie, Woody Herman, Thad Jones, and Bob Mintzer.

DANCE

Dance at Phillips Academy is truly unique. Students may participate in dance as a sport, perform in numerous shows throughout the year, or take it as an academic class. Dance as a sport is divided into three levels: beginner, intermediate, and advanced. Each group takes four to five ballet or modern classes each week. The three levels come together at the end of each term in a very casual show titled the "Dance Demo."

This year, the Dance Committee, a group of dancers committed to organizing dance events and shows and aiding Ms. Wombwell and Mr. Broomfield, is co-chaired by Woodney Haverstick ('03), Jeannette Park ('03), and Kelly Sinclair ('03).

Trisha Brown's belief is that everyday, pedestrian movements can be dance. She'll take something as simple as walking, pare it down to its core elements, and turn it into a dance. While it looked a little odd to us at first, as we were used to more structured techniques, it didn't take long to see the beauty and virtuosity in these seemingly simple movements.

Dance 400 was the main link between Phillips Academy and Trisha Brown. Students in the class got an opportunity to learn two dances created by Brown. We also got to meet her. Students also created their own dances based what we learned from Ms. Brown, which were performed on the steps of Sam Phil.

Her shows are not what you consider to be conventional dancing. She breaks the movements down to the basics. There's very little embellishment or variation in her choreography. When you're performing her pieces, there's a calmness and serenity in the movements.

Theater

We are the theater! We are the actors and directors, writers and producers. We are the technicians, the light and sound designers and operators. We are the creators of art and magic, comedy and drama (and melodrama).

But let's face it, PA has the best theater department around. Maybe it's because between the Theater 520s, Dance 400s, Drama Labs, and Theater Workshops, The Phillips Academy Department of Theater and Dance puts up a good thirty shows a year. Maybe it's because we've been invited to perform with the American High School Theater Festival at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival five times, while no other school has been asked back more than twice. Maybe it's because nothing gives a kid a rush like standing onstage with an audience in front of you and the grid of Steinbach above. Or maybe it's because WE MAKE THE GRASSHOPPER!

The theater draws chemistry whizzes, varsity athletes, and music buffs. This diverse group of performers and collaborators contribute to an experience that is not forgotten by any who take part.

Fall Theater Classrooms

Theater classrooms are an opportunity for Andover students to direct or produce a play on their own. Theater classrooms are usually short, one scene plays with small casts. They're a great chance for students to grow comfortable with theater without the major commitment of a larger production.

Theater Classrooms are very exciting to direct because they often attract newcomers to theater. Classrooms are a great way for new directors to get their feet on the ground.

Uncommon Women and Others is a show that challenges the notions of who women have to be and become while also giving a brutally honest portrayal of emotion. I chose the show because I wanted to direct a play that showed women as they are, without holding back and censoring themselves. I cast a group of 9 talented actresses who brought the story to life with flair, poise and hilarity. The play came to life with a burst that a director could only have dreamed of with 9 exceptional girls (and one voice of man.) At least from a biased director's point of view Uncommon Women and Others not only came off without a hitch, it exploded into Tang and left an audience stunned and craving more.

A Few Words from the Emcees...

Garza and Alex laugh it up

Emceeing Rabbot Cabaret was the coolest, most fun Saturday night we've had. It even beats out usual 'pants optional' dance parties. -Anthony Roldan '04

I realized that Rabbot Cabaret wasn't about the fame, money, or the many many women. It was really about the music. -Alex Limpaecher '04

I just wanted to shake my bon-bon. -David Morse '04

I never realized coconut juice smelt so bad, until I had it smeared all over my chest. -Thatcher Clay '04

Although I was nervous at first, Rabbot Cabaret provided a hilarious yet tasteful means to reveal to the school my massive amount of chest hair. -Matthew "Garza" Garza '04

Wow, I never realized how much chest hair Garza actually had. -Alex Colaianni '03

Andover Clubs

A.D.A.A.C.

A.D.A.A.C. is a forum for discussion about drug and alcohol related issues on campus. The club is made up of users and non-users, each bringing their own unique perspective. Each meeting begins with an opener, where a question is posed and each visitor introduces themselves and shares a bit of themselves with the group. Questions range from "What is your favorite sound?" to "Describe your scariest experience with drugs and alcohol." A.D.A.A.C. is also in charge of organizing F.C.D. (freedom from chemical dependency) week along with the P.E.T. (peer education team) program. All are welcome at Cilla's house for warm discussion, in addition to the plentiful ice-cream and chocolate sauce. -Matt Kane & Ali Rosen, ADAAC co-heads

AfLatAm

This year the African-Latino-American Society has summed up its purpose with the motto, "Sharing our culture and dispelling ignorance within ourselves and our community". Most people come to Phillips Academy with preconcieved notions of those who they have not been exposed to. The club's hope is that by opening our minds and sharing our various cultures, ignorance will loosen its blindfold and all parties can gain clarity.

Af-Lat-Am meets weekly on Friday evenings at Benner House. We discuss issues concerning the Black and Hispanic community, the greater P.A. community, and issues among the world. We end every meeting with a "check out"- What did you struggle with this week? What did you accomplish? What are your goals for next week? This activity is a crucial means to discuss the challenges and to congratulate the success of our club members.

The African-Latino-American Society sponors Latin Arts in November and Black Arts in February. During these cultural weekends we host: an all-school meeting, a semi-formal dinner, an influential speaker, and a school dance or performance. Typically dedicated faculty take students to a Sunday church service of the culture we are celebrating or we invite a pastor to campus to conduct a service.

Our goals for this year include: continued participation in community service projects and joint club discussions and activities. We would also like part of our fundraising proceeds to go to a charity of choice. Af-Lat-Am strives to carry out the themes of commitment and unity through all club activities.

There are no criteria which place a limit on who can be a member. Though Af-Lat-Am is primary composed of Black and Hispanic students and faculty, the club does not practice any form of exclusion. All are welcome to join and we look forward to encompassing various perspectives.

-Itiah Thomas '03, President of Af-Lat-Am

Ambassador's Club

The Andover Ambassadors serve to welcome all prospective students to the PAcampus. We are the largest club on campus because we have so many eager and enthusiastic tour guides. Every day, potential Phillipians see the library and Commons to catch a glimpse into a typical day at Andover. Board members, Paul Chiozzi, Alanna Hughes, Tom Barron, Justin Cahill, Jeremy Beecher, Knef King, Matt Lindsay, Barbara Badman, Amanda Belichick, Shanshan Jiang, Emma Etheridge, and Amy O'Gorman, in conjuction with co-heads, Pat Kinsel and Nyssa Liebermann, keep the show running smoothly; with the dedication from the fearless leaders, Mr. Carr, and Viv Mallick, every person who steps into the Admissions office is guaranteed a fun and informative tour. It's no surprise that the tour guide evaluations have been consitently positive! -Nyssa Liebermann, co-head

Andover Philosophy Society

"Truth springs from argument amongst friends." David Hume

The Andover Philosophy Society provides PA with a forum for the exploration of philosophical ideas in a welcoming atmosphere. This year we have tackled wars, rights, and other issues during weekly meetings over dinner. Cooperating to get the most out of our varied perspectives and backgrounds, we have succeeded in deepening our understanding of the answers to life's most persistent questions.

"Without friends no one would choose to live, though he had all other goods." -Aristotle

Cheers, and Good Luck next year!

Art Club

Every Tuesday at around six o' clock, Art Club meets in the Addison Gallery to work on various projects. The group consists of around twenty or so students who enjoy doing artistic things and want to learn more about the area and what it has to offer. Art Club projects and meetings include sketches of live models, sketches of a still life, paintings, photography, talks with artists, and more. Art Club provides PA students with an opportunity to immerse his or herself in something they really enjoy doing, but might not find the time to do otherwise.

ASIAN SOCIETY

Asian Society is an umbrella cultural organization that consists of four more ethnic-specific clubs: Andover Japanese Connection, Andover Korean Society, Chinese Taiwanese Student Association, and Indian Pakistani Society. The club brings together students from all backgrounds for discussions and special guest speakers to increase awareness of Asian and Asian American issues. Asian Society also organizes periodic social events-the larger ones including an annual sleepover in the log cabin and trips to Asian restaurants in Boston. The year builds up to and climaxes in May for Asian Arts Festival. The smaller clubs and individual students cook and prepare cultural booths representing their countries/cultures at the Asian Arts Cultural Bazaar. A talent show and fashion show follow, featuring dances, skits, music, and traditional clothing. The festival concludes with an all-school dance that introduces modern, popular Asian music.

CATHOLIC STUDENT FELLOWSHIP

This year, the Catholic Student Fellowship planned several events that sought to deepen faith in God in everyday life. During the fall term, our club received a grant from Abbot Academy to support a number of dinner discussions, daylong seminars, and community service projects. Scheduled during the winter and spring terms, the discussions were designed to encourage dialogue between faculty and students. These talks addressed such Church issues as married priests, women priests, homosexuality, and women and the Church. In collaboration with other student organizations, area theologians, and special guests, the daylong seminars focused on the current crises of the Catholic Church. With help from the Community Service Office, our club hosted project with local schools and shelters. The 2002-2003 school year was certainly a successful and rewarding one for the Catholic Student Fellowship.

Club Francophone

Every Tuesday evening, the French community at Phillips Academy gathers together to have dinner in the Ropes Salon of Commons. Amid the panelled woodwork, students of all levels of French are welcomed by their professors with cheerful salutations while chairs are pulled up to make room. Everyone speaks in French, but the conversations are informal and lively. Students and teachers debate local school issues or discuss French cultural affairs over delicious french desserts, which finish off every meeting. Club Francophone offers a great opportunity for students to practice their conversational French skills and get to know their teachers out of the classroom. Besides, who doesn't love mousse au chocolat?

CHESS CLUB CHESS CLUB CHESS CLUB

i can think not of a better way to spend a lazy Sunday afternoon than to catch a late brunch then meander upstairs to Ropes to play a game of chess or two. call me a chess nerd and I shall gladly accept as would Chess Club regulars. sunday became the day of justified procrastination for us. it was an intellectual time that got the mechanics of our brains running, indeed we shall continue to tell ourselves that and feel good about our time spent over a chessboard instead of a book. whether newcomers to the game or rated competitors we all worked on our strategy and had good amounts of fun, intellectual fun that is.

Chinese Language Club

Comprised of a modest yet determined group of four: Boo Littlefield '03 (co-president), Kristina Chang '04 (co-president), Evan McGarvey '03 (public-relations), and Jaclyn Ho '04 (treasurer/secretary), the Chinese Language Club serves as a liaison between students at P.A. who study Chinese and the Chinese culture that is often overlooked in the classroom.

Chinese Club Movie Night with an all-you-can-eat buffet, having Ambassador to China Clark Randt speak to the club, as well as the Chinese New Year Celebration are two of the events that provide a taste of Chinese culture for students who are interested in the language. With Dr. Han and Ms. Young, Instructors in Chinese, eagerly assisting the board to immerse members of the club into the Chinese culture, we hope to bridge the gap between P.A. and "Zhongguo," a land a thousand miles away.

FALUN GONG HUMAN RIGHTS WATCH

Falun Gong Human Rights Watch is a student-run club dedicated to raising awareness about the rampant human rights abuses against people who practice Falun Gong in China. In particular, we focus on the abuses in Chinese labor camps and brainwashing classes (the so-called "re-education camps". We actively write letters, send postcards, and gather petitions to urge the release of prisoners of conscience from labors camps. So far the results have been encouraging, nearly half a dozen U.S. and Canadian residents have been released to date. In our large-scale activities we often collaborate with Amnesty International, which fights global injustice.

frontline

"Andover's Political Magazine"

Frontline is Andover's bipartisan political feature magazine. Publishing five issues per year, Frontline is dedicated to the power and punch of politically charged on-campus issues. Most importantly, however, the Frontline Editorial Board consists of the coolest people on campus. What says "I'm cool" better than Alex Jamali's hot pink bike, Alex Lee's permanent frown, or Stephen Fee's obsessive compulsive tendencies? The editorial board has suffered through room changes, rampant radon exposure in Evans Basement, and Jasper Perkins' poor jokes. Frontline is simply the epitome of "chill." What other magazine would publish an entire issue devoted to "the politics of sex"? You couldn't find that in The Courant. So keep your eyes open next year as 2004 makes Frontline bigger, badder, and, most importantly, cooler. But for now, peace.

GSA

The Phillips Academy Gay Straight Alliance focuses on issues about life as a homo-, hetero-, or bisexual person in today's world. Some issues include: same-sex adoption, societal differences in male and female homosexuality, gays in the military and Boy Scouts, the effectiveness of hate-crime legislation, gender stereotypes and generalizations, and various issues that appear in the news. The GSA also sponsors the GSA Cultural Weekend, which includes the famous Drag Competition. In the past, the group has also been invited to various GSA-sponsored dances in the area (including Exeter and Deerfield) as well as the Annual Gay/Straight Pride March through Boston, Massachusetts.

Wednesday nights at around 6:15, the Oxford Famine Relief club can be found meeting in the Rose Room of Commons. Everyone is welcome to come discuss campus awareness and global issues of social injustice, poverty, and hunger. Ox-Fam is not only a student club, but also a Community Service program working to raise money for the International NGO from which it takes its name. The club sponsors three main fundraising events in the fall: the Benefit Auction, the Sadie Hawkins dance, and the school-wide Fast. The Auction features live student acts and bidding-wars over faculty donations of baked goods, movie tickets, and goodie baskets. Commons donates money to Ox-Fam for every student or faculty member who agrees not to eat dinner in Commons for one night in the fall, so Club members work to sign-up and remind the campus about the Fast. The proceeds from ticket sales of the immensely popular Sadie Hawkins dance also benefit Ox-Fam of America. In the Winter, Ox-fam sells Valentines Day flowers to raise more money, and the club organizes PA participation in the Walk for Hunger in the spring.

My favorite PA memory is from freshman year. One Friday night it was absolutely pouring, and we had nothing to do, so we decided to play tackle football in the rain. Afterwards, we all went mudsliding until we were caked with mud. It was the best Friday Night I've ever had!

you know what, bob was right.... in this great future, you really can't forget your past. we all got great things ahead of us, but the years to come will inevitably pull us from each other, and from our past. in the end, all you have is the memories. hold on to those, they'll make you smile down the road to my friends, thanks for making these four years as fun as they've been. we've had times that i'll never forget. keep it real, stay irie "it's like the wise man said, relax yourself when it's movin too fast, set it down when the goin gets tough it gets you goin if ya really wanna speak then make a sound" ~ long beach dub all-stars

So much I'll never forget. So many ups and downs. Thanks Mom, Dad, David and Carey for all your support. Carey, for all my late night phone calls ☺. You have filled every hole I ever had. I owe you so much, and can't thank you enough

Cort Cort, you've seen me through so much and helped me along the way. I will never forget you or your smile and the sweet things you have said. Anne, what can I say? I love you to death. You've driven me up the wall and back down. I've listened to every word you've ever said, and I am trying to learn from my mistakes. Remember its senior year, and I'm still here. Don't go anywhere ☺. Nys, there has never been a time when you weren't there for me. I couldn't have asked for more. Itiah, I loved getting to know you this year. You are awesome, and I'll never forget your advice. Kate, um yeah a lot of tears huh? I still like that vortex analogy. You have always been there for me if I wanted to talk. It meant a lot to know you cared. I'll miss you. Field Hockey girls, I love you and I will never forget you. Three absolutely awesome years. Riss keep it going, and kick some serious ass. - I never would've been the goofy Jew who I am today without so many others. And now, after four long years, it's time to go. Nothing makes me happier than being with such great kids. I have no regrets about the time I spent here. Goodbye!

It is not the critic who counts; nor the man who points out how the strong man stumbled, or where the doer of deeds could have done better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena; whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs and comes up short again and again: who knows the great enthusiasms, great devotions, and spends himself in a worthy cause; who at best knows in the end the triumph of high achievement; and who at the worst, if he fails at least fails while daring greatly; so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who know neither victory nor defeat. – Theodore Roosevelt

As you set out for Ithaka
hope your road is a long one,
full of adventure, full of discovery.
Laistrygonians, Cyclops,
angry Poseidon-don't be afraid of them:
you'll never find things like that on your way
as long as you keep your thoughts raised high, as long as a rare excitement
stirs your spirit and your body.
Laistrygonians, Cyclops,
wild Poseidon-you won't encounter them unless you bring them along inside your soul, unless your soul sets them up in front of you.
Hope your road is a long one.
May there be many summer mornings when,
with what pleasure, what joy,
you enter harbors you're seeing for the first time;
may you stop at Phoenician trading stations
to buy fine things,
mother of pearl and coral, amber and ebony, sensual perfume of every kind-as many sensual perfumes as you can;
and may you visit many Egyptian cities to learn and go on learning from their scholars.

Keep Ithaka always in your mind.
Arriving there is what you're destined for.
But don't hurry the journey at all.
Better if it lasts for years,
so you're old by the time you reach the island,
wealthy with all you've gained on the way,
not expecting Ithaka to make you rich.
Ithaka gave you the marvelous journey.
Without her you wouldn't have set out.
She has nothing left to give you now.
And if you find her poor, Ithaka won't have fooled you.
Wise as you will have become, so full of experience, you'll have understood by then what these Ithakas mean

It is not the critic who counts; not the man who points out how the strong man stumbles, or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena, whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood; who strives valiantly; who errs, and comes short again and again; because there is not effort without error and shortcoming; but who does actually strive to do the deeds; who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions; who spends himself in a worthy cause, who at the best knows in the end the triumphs of high achievement and who at worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly, so that his place shall never be with those cold and timid souls who knew neither victory nor defeat.

When I'd bicycled our atmosphere to sweetness and freshness, I dismounted and climbed the iron rungs to see what the weather was like above. I did that several times a day. On that day, the fourth day, I perceived through the narrow crescent of the lifted manhole cover that the weather had become somewhat stabilized.

The stability was of a wildly dynamic sort, for the tornadoes were as numerous as ever, and tornadoes remain numerous to this day. But their mouths no longer gobbled and gnashed at the earth. The mouths in all directions were discretely withdrawn to an altitude of perhaps a half of a mile. And their altitude varied so little from moment to moment that San Lorenzo might have been protected by a tornado-proof sheet of glass.

We let three more days go by, making certain that the tornadoes had become as sincerely reticent as they seemed. And then we filled canteens from our water tank and we went above.

The air was dry and hot and deathly still.

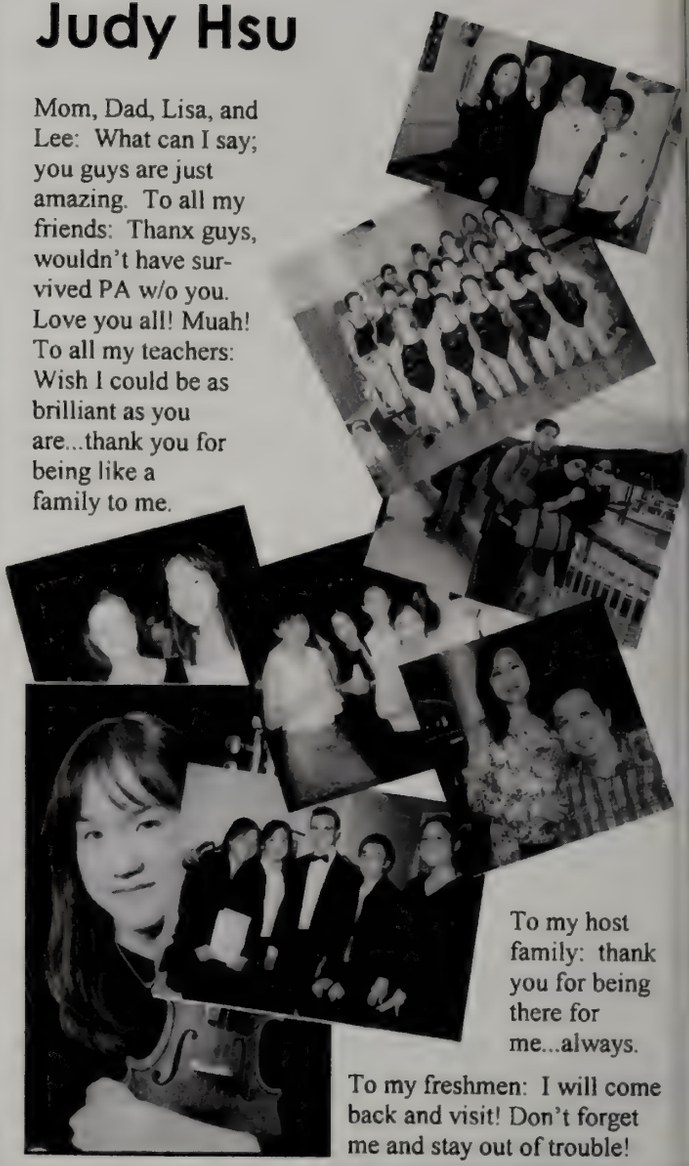

I had heard it suggested one time that the seasons

Diesk – You're perfect and we all envy you!! Never forget: "You can run but can you…" "As red as a blueberry," "Jay-Sun and Ray Aww," Conan, and staying up all night playing the face book game. I promise to never make you late again, or at least I will try (haha).
Natalia – I don't know where to begin; I think we might have literally spent half of high school together. I will never forget our physics review sessions (especially that one where we had to leave because we were laughing), Conan, and vacuuming our adaptation. Remember when you flipped out about your dry gingerbread? Ah, what good times we've had. Thank you for tolerating my obsessive compulsiveness and being an awesome friend. If you ever feel inadequate, just remember, "We're smart girls!"
Anita – Don't change. We all love you. Thank you so much for my surprise 16th par-tay; it was awesome!! Wherever you end up in the future, I know you will do well.
Cooper – Hmm… what can I write to my devoted co-president of the CIA? Thank you so much for being crazy and always keeping things in perspective for me. Just remember, "I'll watch your back, and…" P.S. It may be flat, but it's not concave! (haha)
Dem and Di – I told you we would stay in touch! Never forget our craft club, good times at Otis, and our awesome middle school days.
Kirsten – We've certainly had our disagreements but we've had our good times too. Thanks for helping me out when I call you at 1:00 am and ask you to pronounce "Timon of Athens." I love you!
Mom and Dad – Thank you, thank you, thank you for all of your support!! I love you.
Everybody Else – I will miss you all so much! Remember the good times and stay in touch.

Whose woods are these I think I know
His house is in the village though.
He will not see me stopping here
To watch his woods fill up with snow.

My little horse must think it queer
To stop without a farmhouse near
Between the woods and frozen lake
The darkest evening of the year.

He gives his harness bells a shake
To ask if there is some mistake.
The only other sound's the sweep
Of easy wind and downy flake

The woods are lovely, dark and deep.
But I have promises to keep,
And miles to go before I sleep,
And miles to go before I sleep.

Congratulatory Pages

Senior Pot Pourri Board members show their enthusiasm for people who bought ads.

Congratulations to the Class of 2003! And thank you to all who have made my PA experience what it has been.

Taylor ~ I owe my sanity to you. I don't think I could have made it through this place without you. Knowing that you would always be there, (even if I never saw you) always made me smile. I don't think we have a thing in common, but that makes our friendship all the more valuable.

Cards ~ It's funny to think that pre-season freshman year, I didn't think we'd be friends. Ha! I've never been so wrong. We survived 4 pre-seasons, and so much more. You do not realize how much your calm ability to be rational saved me in my most frantic moments. Thank you thank you thank you.

Lucy ~ It's hard to find someone as boy crazed as I am, who also has such an amazing personality behind it. For our late night convos, our venting, our thinking we were members of '02, and our perpetual understanding without necessarily talking, I cannot thank you enough.

Greg ~ You are the best! For listening to me ramble about my nothingness, and driving me around when I needed to get away, I am forever indebted to you.

Fee ~ Thanks for being a loner with me! You don't know how much I loved our random brunches and dinner dates.

Burtt Girls ~ (Jams and J, never forget New Years! Woo~ 4 more years!) I love you all!!

Malo & Rory ~ Thanks for ... challenging me. I needed someone to make me laugh and remind me of what it meant to have fun.

Wessler~ Thank you for always making me smile, even when I didn't want to.

Marissa ~ I'm so glad you moved to Adams. Emmy was right, we are a perfect match. Good luck next year.

Tari~ Even if it's solely because of Mr. Bardo (ha!) I'm glad that we're rebuilding our friendship this year. Stay true to your commitments.

Adams Family ~ (esp. LK, MH, SW, CA, NL, MC, DV) Nothing but love.

Pot Po (esp. Matt and Vinny) ~ I never could have made it without you guys.

FH and LAX gals (especially my national tourney gals) ~ Some of my best PA memories are with you guys. At times I questioned the cheesiness of our superstitions and routines, but now I'm really gonna miss them

With love, Lindsey

It's just that I am what I am
And I'm me!
When I look at myself
And I see in myself
All the wonderful things that I see
If I'm pleased with myself
I have every good reason to be.

I've gotta crow!
I'm just the cleverest gal
Twas ever my fortune to know;
I taught a trick to my shadow
To stick to the end of my toe
I've gotta crow!

I've gotta brag!
I think it's sweet
I have fingers and feet
I can wiggle and wag
I can climb trees
And play tag with the breeze
In the meadows below
I've gotta crow!

So, naturally
When I discover
the cleverness of a remarkable me
How can I hide it
When deep down inside
It tickles me so
That I've gotta let go and crow!

I'm really a rare thing.
Such a fair thing
I can't keep still!
I'm bursting with pride
And I just couldn't keep it inside
If I tried
So, naturally
When I discover the cleverness of a remarkable me,
How can I hide it
When deep down inside it just tickles me so
That I've gotta let go and crow!

CONGRATULATIONS RYAN

Dear Nate,

I remember the boy who cheered for Exeter. I am proud of the man who now graduates from Andover. From now on, our loyalties may diverge on the field, But always remember that no rivalry between schools will ever rival the love and allegiance that can only be shared by brothers. Forever your brother, forever your friend.

-Jill B. Ozzie-

No one has ever done for me what you have in the past two years. Frequently, when this place has been the bane of my existence, you've been the only thing to look forward to. I cherish the time that we've spent together, the weekends off campus in Manchester-by-the-Sea, hours in the library and quiet nights watching T.V. in the dorms. You motivated me to graduate, encouraged me to perform, increased my expectations, and gave me something to work for. You've taught me volumes about myself, showed me what I want in life and that one person can make all of the difference. It means so much to me that you've introduced me to your family, spending weekends and vacations with you is something I will never forget, it has meant the world to me. But most importantly, you've always been my reason to be happy and grateful; I've always had a reason to wake up in the morning. As most will attest to, I wouldn't have made it to graduation if it weren't for you... No matter where I am over the next few years, I promise to do for you what you've done for me– get you through this place. No matter what challenges, stresses, and obstacles come your way, never change. You are perfect in every way, you are the best thing that has ever happened to me. I cherish and love you, Jill.

Thank you, I truly am appreciative.

Sarah Demers

In Late '85
On a hot summer day
Our Sarah arrived
How sweet, all would say
A nice little girl
So shy, yet so warm
Eyes twinkled, hair curled
Your fan club was formed
You sailed right through school
While swimming each day
Hey that girl is no fool
Why not try for PA?

These four years went fast
The pace always furious
Most days were a blast
If awake and still curious
It's now time to graduate
Our Sarah Demers
Let's rejoice and congratulate
On all that concur
You've been but a dream
All your seventeen years
Your family does beam
Holds you tight and so dear

Congratulations

ALL OUR LOVE, ALWAYS
MUM, DAD, ANDREW & BRUNO

Sonson,

Words are inadequate to express to you the full measure o our love and appreciation in your graduation day. It was difficult to make the decision to let you attend boarding school — a decision, utterly different from our culture, but deep, personal, and rewarding. We had no doubt that you would make it. When you say "yes" or "no" you mean it. You are never on the fence. The road was at times dark, a rocky, yet you have surpassed those difficult barriers and obstacles. Our son, the path, although filled with deep valle and mountains, proved to be a pleasurable learning experience that you will forever remember. You have burnt the midnight oil for a good cause. Congratulations!

You have come now to the end of this road and reached the beginning of a new one. This is the time now t think of a higher assignment: attending college. Go forward with the strength and conviction that God's grace will accompany you throughout this new journey. He will continue to lead guide you along this path and He will grant you health, wisdom, intelligence, humility, enjoyment, peace love and a boundless enthusiasm to succeed.

Sonson, we warmly congratulate you on this happy and memorable occasion. We love you with all our strength.

Me gotta go, me-o, my-o

Jordan,

You are all but grown up now, but I remember when you played with GI Joes and X-Men. It's been weird not having you around these past four years, and now you're going away again. Who's going to try those "do not attempt at home" stunts we see on TV? (OK, we haven't really tried any of those in a while, but it makes for good memories!) I've learned a lot of from you and I hope you learned something from me too. Thanks for being my big brother and my hero, Jillian

Nicholas Ksiazek Attains Eagle Scout Rank

Nicholas E. Ksiazek received his Eagle Scout award, the highest rank in Boy Scouts of America, at a Court of Honor in ad-Diwaniyah Dhahran on April 26.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Ksiazek of Dhahran and a member of Troop 253.

For his service project – one of the requirements for becoming an Eagle Scout – Ksiazek led 17 other scouts in a playground safety campaign for the Dhahran Hills School. It consisted of auditing the safety of the existing playgrounds, making recommendations to the school about changes to improve playground safety and implementing some of those changes.

Ksiazek also highlighted safety rules and practices in a presentation to the students, prepared a playground safety brochure for parents and attended the open house night for parents to discuss safety. The brochure is available at the Community Information Center and the Recreation office in Building 1420.

As You Grow Older
It was a long time ago,
Our son appeared like a dream
In front of us
Bright like the sun --
Parker was our dream

And then he grew
First slowly,
Then more quickly as he aged
Between us was our dream

He rose until he touched the sky --
Finding a thousand lights of sun,
Thinking about a thousand whirling dreams of his own.

Keep the light of your dreams before you.
Reach for those that are above.
There are no limits where you can go.

You've gone from Powder Ridge to Lower Bobby's Shadow(1990-2001), Dukie, "Halt! Come out with your hands up!" -- How Bazaar. Tumbleweed, Dumbell, Lyman's golf league, the box factory, Habitat for Humanity. "Listen here Buckwheat, you've heard of the Last Supper..."

It's been a ball! Literally, a ball is all you've needed for hours of entertainment. From when you were a baby learning to play "catch" to your imaginary baseball games in the backyard to home run derbies with friends at any available ballpark. As parents, a ball became more than our playtime. We saw you developed a strong sense of family and fun, a sharing and caring attitude, and a growing intellect. Your integrity and leadership qualities will transcend the playing field... and you will always be a winner in our ballgame!

On the ice and on the mound..
You're fun to watch, you're fun to know,
What a treat to see you grow!

Sure, the last four years have not been easy,
Not for you, and not for us.
But how do we measure our success?
You only once missed the bus!

We followed you to St. Marks & Paul,
The prep school league is quite a haul.
But win or loose you gave it your all,
And through it all, we had a ball!

You may not be the most well-read,
After that hockey puck hit you in the head.
But "What the hey," you always say,
"Don't worry Ma, I'm OK."

We followed you by ambulance,
We followed you by bus.
Broken arms and broken legs,
"Ma, don't make a fuss!"

Now it's time to say adieu,

World-wide, civilians and military personnel fell victim to terrorist bombs and acts of hatred. ## Spring Supplement

2003

180 Main Street
Andover, Mass. 01810
Population: 1050
Established: 1778

Jayme Mendal '03, June Gordon'04, Stephen Fee '03, Alex Lee '03, and Matt Lindsay '03, enjoy sun on the library terrace.

On March 31st, I anxiously stepped out of the Flightline van expecting to be embraced by the warm, soothing spring air, but was instead greeted by a freezing rain and biting wind that I only associated with harsh Andover winters. I knew, however, that the temperamental New England weather would give us something to smile about, even if it we had to wait until early May. I refused to let the dismal weather dampen my spirits, and I vowed to wear my flip-flops everyday, against the advice of Mrs. Chase, until spring graced the Andover campus.

All winter I dreamt of sleeping with my window open, studying on the great lawn, sunbathing on the steps of Sam Phil, and barbecuing with the ABS. I imagined seniors, lounging on the Greal Lawn and waiting for that oh-so-precious diploma. After 8 weeks of freezing cold, the flu, and 2 math tests per week, these blissful images of spring were stuffed in the back of my closet along with my shorts and Tank Tops.

Below: Lowers Sarah Chang, Lindsay Baker, Katie Hunckler, and Marcella Viktorin soak up the sun on the Knoll.

Left: In an attempt to forget the snowy weather, Tanisha Colon-Bibb '06 and Sam Hall '06 warm themselves up at the Luau in the Borden Gym.

Several gloomy weeks passed by with no sign of spring. Teams ere fighting for cage time due to snow covered fields, and there were urries on the night of the Luau dance. I was beginning to lose hope ntil one Thursday, on my way to math, I saw the first flower buds of he year popping out of the once frozen, unforgiving soil. I smiled nowingly; the real Phillips Academy spring term was about to begin. I aced back o my dorm, hrew on my horts, flip-lops, and a Hawaiian shirt, and trode to English class completely gnoring the forty degree weather. I sat through my tortuous English double impatiently, anticipating the balmy conditions soon to come. As soon as the bell rang, I hurried out the door of Bulfinch. I smiled and gave a sigh of appreciation as I felt the warm air kiss my skin. I looked up into the sky as the sunbeams found their way to my cheeks, and I walked on with a spring in my step.

In an effort to capitalize on their stress-free, spring term, Matt Kane and Alex Jamali '03 enjoy some down time on the Great Lawn.

I strolled down the path dodging manic squirrels and ecstatic seniors right and left. Garver room was silent for once, while the great lawn was covered with students soaking up the sun. The Cherry Blossoms exploded with vibrant colors, and pink petals littered the campus walkways. I watched the notorious Seventh Period Whiffle Ball League, the devious water balloon launchers and of course, those idling seniors attempting the Slip-n-Slide. The senior boys had already set up their lawn chair thrones, presiding joyously over the spring activities and thoroughly enjoying their seniority. The spirit of the student body was through the roof.

With looks of contentment, Charlie Thornton '05, Natali Exner '05, and Meta Weiss '05 enjoy the sun.

For the young and inexperienced freshmen, spring term marked their emergence from the basement of the library and the over-crowded tables in commons. Taking long breaks from their grueling bio projects, they marked their territory on the great lawn along with their fellow Andover students. They blocked the scary thoughts of the cumulative Science final and replaced them with happy thoughts of lower year, and freedom from lights out.

The lowers saw this spring term as their "last hurrah" before the infamous upper year. They milked every moment of fun outside for all it was worth. The lower boys perpetually played whiffle ball during seventh period while the girls tanned and pretended to study. English 200 classes escaped from Bulfinch and studied great authors on the Great Lawn.

The poor uppers received both sympathy and taunting from their elder peers, as they embarked upon the most academically intense term of their PA careers. They put their work ethics to the test as they tried to dodge every distraction and temptation that spring term seemed to provide. While the seniors were busy partying, the uppers were slowly chipping away at the gargantuan History Research Paper.

They knew it was only a matter of time until they could finally relax.

Below: With a little help, Nate Scott '05 finally succeeds in towering over Meg Coffin '03.

As for the class of '03, well, they were having the time of their lives. When a certain senior was asked how his senior spring was treating him, he answered that it was simply "unreal." With few classes to attend, the most superior bunch of students at Andover could focus their minds on more important things, like who was going to ask them to the prom and whether they needed more than one Slip-n- Slide. The class of 2003, after 4 years of hard work and sometimes stressful classes, spent their last days on Academy Hill in well deserved celebration and relaxation.

The characteristic Spring term has come to an end, leaving me with nothing but a smile on my face. Next year, we as students will again rise up, and face the same challenges and joys of our older peers. Spring term will again serve as the light at the end of our long tunnel. The joys of Spring term will always hold a special place in our hearts, and will be among our fondest and most heartfelt memories.

Life in the Sun

Once the snow melted and revealed an abundance of green grass, spring 2003 fulfilled our desires to relocate outdoors. Filled with one exciting event after another, spring term offered solace from the harshness of winter term. For Phillips Academy's 225th and Abbot Academy's 175th anniversary, the weekend was packed with workshops, concerts, and guest speakers to help Phillips Academy celebrate the 30th anniversary of the marriage between Abbot Academy and Phillips Academy. Taking a break from work, the Uppers gathered for the Spring Fling in the upper right dinning hall in anticipation of senior year. Shortly following, Andover ventured into Boston for the annual senior prom. Although it ended a few hours earlier than previous years, no one seemed to mind as they danced the night away in Boston's World Trade Center and on the decks of the boat. The following weekend many students let their inner children run wild at Spring Carnival, a new Andover tradition, as they rode the Ferris Wheel and suited up as sumo wrestlers. Finally, diplomas were passed around the commencement circle signifying the end of one journey and the begining of another. Though the weather was not conduscive to the slew of typical springtime events, Andover undoubtedly still had that spring in their step.

225 years of tradition on Academy Hill and still standing strong...

Step in Time

The weekend of April 25, 2003 marked the 225th anniversary of Phillips Academy, the 175th anniversary of Abbot Academy, and the 30th anniversary of the merger of the two. This weekend not only honored Phillip Academy's past, but recognized the importance of the future by celebrating the completion of Campaign Andover. The Andover community, some traveling from as far as Tokyo, came to Academy Hill to acknowledge this epic milestone by attending events such as alumni visits, seminars, banquets, concerts and speeches. On Friday evening, Andover kicked off the celebration with the All School Meeting, which featured anecdotes on the past and present of Academy Hill. The much-anticipated award, the Claude M. Fuess Award, was presented to David E. Underwood for his outstanding service to the community. Up next was the extravagant dinner in the Cage, where students tasted foods from different US regions and made a dash for the root beer floats. The ceremony in the Chapel on Saturday evening included speeches by David Underwood, President Bush, and Barbara Chase. Barbara Chase described Andover as a melting pot for talent and excellence, producing the minds that will one day become the great contributors to society. Next, students, faculty and alumni flocked to Borden Gym to listen to Brad Corrigan, former lead singer of Dispatch, perform. Finally, wrapping up this sensational weekend was the highly anticipated Jazz Brunch, which included entertainment by some of Andover's finest musicians and a tasty brunch.

Uppers gather in Commons for the annual Spring Fling, their own right of passage.

This year's Upper Spring fling, an annual event marking the passage of the current uppers into senior year, was unfortunately held inside Commons due to the rain. Although the rain prevented the event from being held in the Chase's backyard, it did nothing to lessen the energy and excitement of the BBQ- style dinner. This event happened to coincide with the completetion of many history papers, allowing the class of '04 to let loose and really enjoy themselves. As Mr. and Mrs. Chase welcomed each rising senior with a handshake and a handful of blue sharks, the upcoming senior year began to sink into the minds of all Uppers. Commons adorned the wooden tables with wine glasses, candles, and Phillips Academy emblem plates. "It was definitely a remarkable night despite the weather. I am really begining to get excited about senior year," commented June Gordon '04. All throughout the event, Charlotte Kendrick '95 filled upper right with her melodious voice and folk songs. As the night was begining to come to an end, Uzoma Iheagwara '04 and Derrick Kuan 04' took center stage to cap things off. They serenaded the crowd with the smooth harmonic songs of "Oh What a Night" by Billy Joel and "Go-Go" by Wham. The Upper Spring Fling enabled the class of 2004 to kick back and have fun with their classmates. It was a crazy and funfilled dinner, marking their passage to senior year.

Taking a break from their hectic schedules, Upper girls Jenny Wong, Olivia Oran and Emily Ma enjoy the quasi-BBQ in upper right.

Best Foot Forward

Dressed in their finest, Andover students dance the night away.

Prom night began with the promenade six o'clock. Everybody mingled for a while impatiently awaiting the walk to the buses. The overcast skies didn't take away from the excitement and beauty of the students. Parents bombarded their children with the flashes of their cameras while the prom goers maintained constant smiles. The walk to the buses was kept short and sweet as Mr. Driscoll rushed people along with his megaphone. A half an hour drive later PA arrived at the World Trade Center in Boston, ready to commence the night. A buffet was quickly served and music started to play and the eager dancers began to "shake their thangs." The dancing lasted from nine to twelve, when the prom goers paused to make their way to the boat where more dancing awaited them. Two packed dance floors entertained several, while decks with beautiful views and tables with food invited those with tired feet. The fun ended at 3 am, when the boat docked back at the harbor. People were amazed that people used to be able to dance all the way until 5am. The buses were filled again as the students sleepily left for Academy Hill. The night ended on a high note. Days later people were still talking about the fabulous experience.

Andover students flock to Spring Carnival to let loose that inner child.

On a hiatus from the endless rain, Mother Nature blessed Andover with a glorious night on the knoll. Previously known as Abbot Baazar, Spring Carnival relocated the highly anticipated festivities onto the knoll and dubbed itself the new "it" springtime event. All weeklong the coordinators expected horrendous weather, but to our surprise the sun perservered for first part of the event. The imfamous BBQ, the Hoola-Hoop contests and the sumo wrestling combined to create a truly fun-filled evening. The obstacle course and jousting games had lines so long that people got their dinner and ate it while waiting. Towards the end of the evening, the rain commenced once again - only to cool us down from all the heat and energy of Spring Carnival. All in all, the night was a hit and the carnival served as the perfect social gathering to end the 2002-2003 school year.

On Sunday morning of June 8th, the Seniors processed up the Great Lawn to the steps of Sam Phil. This march signified the end of one journey and the begining of another. As the unrelenting rainclouds parted to reveal the sun, the seniors became the most recent group of Phillips Academy alumni. After the traditional, symbolic procession -- the bag pipers led the class of 2003, which was followed by the faculty -- Phillips Academy's five most prestigious awards were announced. Sara Duvisac received the Non Sibi award, which is given to an individual who has displayed an immense selflessness and consideration of others. Sarah Demers was awarded the Yale Bowl, which is given to a member of the senior class who has excelled in both athletics and academics. Katherine Dlesk was given the Madame Sarah Abbot Award, given to a student whose strong character, leadership and exceptional academics sets her apart from her peers. Jeannette Park received the Faculty Prize for outstanding scholarship during her senior year. Last but not least, student body president and commencement speaker Sikanyiselwe Maqubela was awarded the Auerilian Honor Society Award for sterling character, high scholarship and forceful leadership.

Following the announcements of these awards, Mrs. Chase addressed the class of 2003. Her inspirational, revering words embodied the unforgettable talent, charisma, intelligence and leadership of this class. Next, Kanyi Maquebela delivered a heartfelt speech about overcoming the treacherous, trying mountain of Andover. The class the proceeded to the Great Lawn to receive their diplomas in the traditional circle. Though the hovering clouds in the begining of the ceremony appeared to reflect the somberness of leaving Academy Hill, the sunshine at the end was a clear indication that this class is ready to conquer the world.

Close friends, Spencer Bush-Brown '03, Jayme Mendal '03 and Jeanne LeSaffre '03 celebrate and reminisce.

Make a Lasting Impression

Spring term is a time that students anxiously await all year long. Dreams of relaxing on the Great Lawn, sunbathing with friends, and endless games of Wiffle ball fill their minds. As students return from spring break, they bring back with them their shorts and flip-flops, excited to return to the sunny New England weather. The beauty of the campus shines through during the spring, and students take advantage of the campus lawns. Taking the place of the library, the lawn becomes the new hotspot for social mingling. Seniors are a constant reminder to the Andover community that spring has arrived. Instead of physics and history homework, their days are filled with games, intense relaxation and the eager anticipation of commencement. Even though many students savor the sunshine, it does not go unnoticed that the end is drawing near. Seeing this as one final opportunity before summer, they scramble to find that last fling. Spring relationships begin to rise faster than the temperature as students begin to consider many of their classmates as potential relationship candidates. Through these jovial acts it becomes apparent to all that spring term gives students a little something extra in their step.

Break into Spring

No more hittin' the books, it's time to hit the beach and relax!

Just as the blizzards of winter term began to show clemency,Andover students packed their swimsuits and sunscreen with warmer weather and relaxation in mind. Following a Phillips Academy tradition, students were scattered around the globe for Spring Break 2003. With as many destinations as there were motivations for these trips, students were driven by endeavors for singing, sports, service, and sun. Senior Dan Koh reflects, "The South Carolina Service Trip was truly the most poignant and powerful experience I've ever had at PA. When you get 44 people together all working for the common good...it's an amazing feeling that can't be put into words, but everybody is immersed by it." The Cantata singing group performed on the warm beaches of Hawaii, while the varsity baseball team trained down in Florida. Most students arrived back in snowy New England with tanned skin,plenty of rest, and lots of entertaining stories!

Celebrating the end of an unusually harsh winter, international seniors unleash their inner children inside the magical gates of Disneyworld in Orlando, FL.

The Final Footprints

As the Seniors begin the countdown to Commencement, anticipation and nostalgia grace the Andover campus.

The seniors' voices couple with excitement and pride as they make their procession down the chapel aisle to kick-off the first all-school meeting of the term. From that day on the spontaneous bursts of "'03" persist: an on-going ode to the fast-approaching light at the end of tunnel. Those unending eruptions of enthusiasm trigger commencement fantasies in the cluttered minds of envious underclassmen. Some time later anxiety encases George Washinton Hall as many coveted large packages and infamous small envelopes reveal a variety of paths for the next four years. College-talk soon dies down and seniors grab their lawn chairs and bask in the term many of them have spent their last four years dreaming about. In their last term at Phillips Academy, seniors have the flexibility to pursue their specific interests - whether it is photography, psychology, or African drumming. Enjoying the friendships that have been cemented over the past few years, friends delight in the small pleasures that were often overlooked during the lengthy, stressful weeks that so ardently characterized their Andover careers. From Friday night poker games and fancy desserts at the Andover Inn to the ever-familiar Ryley Room, seniors have a blast. For many students, the final term at Phillips Academy provides time to engage in activities that have kept students alive over the years. Whether its that hour a week of community service in neighboring Lawrence, or the pouring of their thoughts into Backtracks and Courant pieces, or those Sunday mornings-turned-afternoons spent in the big chairs in the window of Starbucks; students can never get enough of senior spring. Alone or alongside all their closest friends, the members of the senior class re-discover their love for Andover. When asked what part of Andover she will miss most Jackie Brown '03, without a moment's hesitation, responds, "definitely the people," and most seniors seem to agree.

Green, Green Grass

As the temperature rises, Andover students find it hard to resist the Great Lawn.

Whether there to take a leisurely afternoon nap, to play Frisbee, or study, or to just socialize with your friends, many students use the Great Lawn as an escape from their academics. This stretch of grass, which covers the vast area between Newman House all the way to the Cochran Chapel and back to Samuel Phillips, is revered here upon Andover Hill for its incredible versatility: junior year, it might be a relaxing retreat, but come senior year, it's the place of an incredibly nerve-racking experience, graduation. Yet, whatever your purpose for spending time there, it's a wonderful place to just sit back and enjoy the passage of time. Senior Ali Rosen remarks, "The Great Lawn gives us freedom; it feels so open and peaceful that it creates the perfect atmosphere for work or play. It is a great symbol of our school."

Katie Regner '03 and Will Walter '03 enjoy a playful moment

As commonly accepted notion, romance finds its way into the hearts of many during the springtime. Here, on Academy Hill, this cliché holds true. Unlike the first two terms, the sunshine and warmth of spring term tempts students out of the depths of the library and onto the lawn. As social interaction increases and the realization that the end is fast approaching, many students scramble to enjoy that last relationship or fling. The intensity of these relationships range from the casual fling to the creation of the inseparable duo. Prom also prompts many to join the love bandwagon for an unforgettable night with that special someone. As the heat rises and summer approaches, love lingers in the air. For seniors, spring term is their final chance for a little taste of Andover romance.

Jumping on Stage

Aspiring actresses and actors endure long rehearsals for those priceless moments under the spotlight.

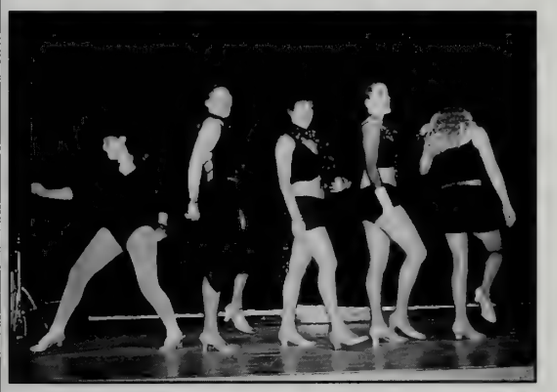

Every spring term, Andover's Theater Department bustles with a myraid of people and productions. Seniors, whether they happen to be almost famous veterans of the stage,or newcomers who have just found the courage to step up on stage, are frequently found in the spring shows. Another highly anticipated show is the junior play, where many of Andover's most outstanding performers make their first debut. From comedies to dramas, and monologues to musicals, the drama department successfully entertains everyone. "This year, spring term theater was alive with experimentation and energy," commented Ali Scouten '04, an active actress and co-producer for 2003-2004 school year. The young actors and actresses of Rumors, the junior play, demonstrated a wealth of new talent and were well-received by the audience. Senior Ali Rosen directed the controversial Vagina Monologues, which made a beautiful transition from serious to comic subject matter. On the musical side there were two student directed shows. The first was a medley of show tunes titled The Broadway Revue, which featured songs from Chicago and Grease, as well as a number of other popular shows. Lydia Wallace '04 directed Your A Good Man, Charlie Brown, an original choice and a delightful performance. Smaller-scale productions included numerous theater classrooms, as well as a showcase of Mr. Heelan's play writing class ' student-written shows. From the colorful and charged Carnival to the annual Dance Open, dancers left their audiences in awe this term. The most dedication was put into this term's Theater-520 production, the French absurdest Rhinocerous. In addition to its 3 nights in Tang, Rhinocerous will be performed at the Fringe Festival in Edinborough, Scotland. From five-minute theater-classroom to this term's larger productions, student directors, actors and actresses, producers, and tech teams put heart, soul, and lots of time into the Theater Department this Spring.

Matt London '03, one of this year's student producers, has been active in the theater department since his freshman year. At Andover London contibuted through his participation in acting, directing, producing, and most recently film, which he plans to further explore in college next year. "I want to do everything," says London of his future. "I have no delusions of grandeur, but I do believe that everyone should have achievable goals and then unachievable dreams, because life should always be moving upwards, without any wandering breaks. So my goal is to make a full-length feature film; my dream is to become a household name." - Courtesy of The Phillipian

Change of Pace

The War on Iraq provokes emotion, discussion and reflection amongst the Andover community.

Pro-war or anti-war, students on campus have been very vocal about expressing their views on current American politics and recent government action concerning Iraq. Whether it's organizing candlelight vigils, participating in the Sweet Honey Society's daily prayer around the flag pole, or attending rallies in front of the bell tower,the members of the Phillips Academy community openly convey their opinions about the U.S.-Iraqi conflict. Because Andover has such a diverse community, a myriad of different opinions are expressed daily. Though everyone must be careful and respectful in their expression, all are able to turn their opinions into thoughtful debates. When Helen Chacon '05 was asked about how the war has affected her, she commented that "debates and conversations surrounding the war in Iraq have presented themselves everywhere from the daily walk to Commons to formal lectures on nonviolence; it's such a touchy subject, because a lot of people are really passionate about their position."

Dorm Sweet Dorm

As winter turns to spring, dorm life comes out of hibernation.

Spring term has hit the dorms head-on. Apparent from Juniors forgetting what lights out is and Lowers beginning to realize they do have a tad bit more work than they let on to uppers trying to keep their peers quiet so they can tackle work while the seniors party till dawn and sleeping till class that begins at noon, spring has arrived. With the unfortunate, rainy climate, students made their dorms the place to be. Rather than holding BBQ and Ice Cream/Popsicle munches outside, students congregated in their common rooms to eat and hang out. Why be outside in the humid rain when you can enjoy all the series finales and catch up on all the TV reruns missed throughout the year? Whether procrastination or lack of work draws you away from the books, it is time to kick off your shoes and relax your feet. Take a few tips from this year's residents of Paul Revere; be brave, chill on rooftops and let your feet dangle to and fro. If anything happens the constructions workers are looking out for you. And don't forget the beauty tips from Day Hall. Whatever you do, you have to look good - just make sure to watch out while using a hair straightener. This year the Andover Fire Department and PAPS showed up to see Franklin Davison '05 among steam with a head of half straight and half curly hair. A ton of wild and crazy things happen in the dorms during spring term when everyone is finally ready to let loose!

Following the Footsteps

The contrasting lifestyles of freshmen and seniors.

It's a long journey from junior orientation to senior commencement, but most seniors agree that the end makes the whole experience worthwhile. After numerous attempts, juniors pry open their mailboxes on their first day of school to encounter a schedule full of confusing abreviations each followed by the number one hundred. A few weeks bring relief when one of the tiny boxes is uncovered as a lunch period, trickily disguised as a course, and that the one hundreds in fact indicate that their classes prove the least challenging and often the least interesting the school has to offer. Underclassmen years are spent filling tedious requirements in all departments. These classes establish a great foundation, while helping students find out what classes attract their deeply invested involvement, and which would be better spent grabbing that extra hour of sleep. By the end of their time here though Seniors' mailboxes are masterfully set at the exact postion so that no time will be wasted with forgotten combinations. As they examine their schedules they delight in the high-numbered, high- demand electives, while they gleefully color in their numerous blank boxes, indictive of the long hours that will be spent lounging on the Great Lawn. When asked about her favorite class this spring, Danny Dumond '03 has trouble deciding, but decides on Physics 600. "It's hard," she says, "but Dr. Watt is sooo funny!" Popular electives range from Urban Studies to Existentialism to African Drumming, and everything in between. Whether its the amazing teacher, the obscure topic matter, or the rumored effortlessness of the course, seniors are excited to take a break from the requirements and have fun. Armed with close friendships, academic freedom, and plenty of experience, seniors were able to make their final term not only the most fun, but the most memorable. Here's a more personal look at what a day is like for the novices and the experts on campus as we follow two junior/senior sibling pairs.

Rising to the Expectations

Despite the warm weather and the relaxed atmosphere, spring term still retains the decidedly academic flavor that Andover students taste throughout the rest of the year. The path from April 1st to Commencement Weekend in June appears short but treacherous. Coursework intensifies, with daunting research papers and final projects ensuring that many an upperclassman can plan on long days and even longer nights as summer approaches. In the midst of all this, College Board tests and two weeks of Advanced Placement exams represent even more challenges for aspiring scholars to overcome.

Nevertheless, from the Junior studying Renaissance Europe to the Upper reading Shakespeare, everyone manages to find that elusive "spring" in his or her step as classes culminate the year with their most engaging material. Coinciding with the change of seasons and temperature, this academic excitement—as cliché as the notion may be—provides the school with a special energy that lasts right until Seniors bid their final farewells on the Great Lawn.

Stepping Into The Lab

Students try their hands at real life applications of science in Evans.

By Spring Term, science classes begin to reach the point when they can apply their knowledge. These applications take place in the labs of Evans through hands on activities. In Chemistry, students titrate chemicals to discover concentrations, perform complex reactions, and make voltaic cells. In Biology, everyone from AP students to beginners dissect a variety of organisms to learn about anatomy. Meanwhile Physics students measure the mass of an electron and explore the speed of sound in air. These labs add depth and life to the science curriculum.

A Closer Look...English 311

For many, English class conjures up images of mundane class discussions, expository essays and in-class quizzes. Several years ago, Phillips Academy created an interdisciplinary course designed to engage Uppers and bring the works of Shakespeare to life. English 311 is a perfect opportunity for those interested in theater to study Shakespeare by acting it o Though at first everyone feels awkward analyzing their breathing and highlighting the antithesis, we all soon reach a comfort level. Once we begin reading sonnets in our favorite accents, Shakespeare comes alive. We laugh, we cry, we learn. Mr. Heelan pushes us to the extremes of our acting abilities, teaches us that "To be or not to be," is not at all about suicide, and urges us to memorize impeccably. Shakespeare's works are meant to be acted, and through the instruction in English 311, we are one step closer to bringing his plays to life.

- Alison Schouten '4

Hearts, Minds, And Shakespeare

From in-depth looks at the Vietnam War to intensive studies of William Shakespeare, Andover students enjoy unique English classes during the spring term.

Spring heralds many new opportunities, including those for a Senior's course of study in English. The steady stream of recommended and required courses that form the backbone of a college resume finally opens up into a plethora of English electives representing various styles and tastes from different time periods. One such elective is English 592: A Hard Rain: A Study of Different Media Through Their Responses to the Vietnam War.

One of the few electives that utilizes interdisciplinary study to enhance a student's assimilation of the ma terial, this elective requires concurrent enrollment in Art 440. Students study sundry forms of contemporary media including documentaries, novels, photography, songs, and visual art as well as films such as Full Metal Jacket, The Deer Hunter, and Apocalypse Now.

Higher Education, Infinite Stress

PA students prepare to make the jump from high school to college.

At PA, on a given spring day, the word "college" conjures up many ifferent thoughts and emotions. To Juniors, ollege is that ominous descriptor coming before preparatory school' in the Andover brochure. hen upper year arrives, however, the college enzy is in full swing. From the first meeting ith College Counseling in the winter, to the rduous, research-paper-filled "Upper Spring" e Class of 2004 experienced the brutal pinnacle f academic challenge. In the fall, uppers are ombarded by a veritable alphabet soup of andardized tests. The PSAT/NMSQT etermines placement in the much revered ational Merit Scholarship. AP's -- the hallenging, mind-numbing tests -- not only rovide college credit, but the extra padding that very resume needs. And for every test, there is f course, a preparation booklet. Kaplan, rinceton Review, and Barron's offer patented trategies to 'cracking the SAT" or "mastering he AP Calculus.

After an invigorating battery of tests, Uppers face the task of categorizing their olleges. Using College Counseling approved raphs, students can compare their test scores nd GPAs to admitted and rejected applicants at prospective college. Students then file their hoices into "Likely", "Mid-Range", or the epressing "Reach".

At the beginning of senior year, the college essays surface. These essays highlight the touchy-feely side of applicants. Besides the standard "I have been challenged by.." essay, some colleges show their sadistic side, with questions such as "What is your favorite food? Why?" and "How would you advance World Peace?" While all this seems Herculean, the payoff comes near the end of winter term. Gathering in the G.W. mailroom, seniors receive that thick envelope from a college. With joy, the Seniors, freed from their 2-year long saga, spend their remaining Andover days playing ultimate frisbee on the Great Lawn. And while the seniors frolic on the Lawn, the next group of uppers watches in envy, as the quest for college begins anew.

Cramming It All In

With the end fast approaching, students prepare for their last exams.

As the year comes to an end, students all across campus are plaugued with an array of emotions -- sadness, anticipation and stress. With the temptations to leave all academic burdens inside and enjoy life on the lawn, many students find it hard to become motivated. Thoughts of summer and commencement fill their heads as they attempt to study. Fortunately, they are able to reach a compromise between their review sessions and mandatory baseball games on the lawn, and survive finals week unscathed.

Making Magic on Canvas

Students express themselves through a variety of mediums with the guidance of qualified art teachers

The arts at PA provide students with an opportunity to express themselves with an array of different mediums, ranging from canvas to camera. Though only required for two or three terms, there are so many unique and varied arts courses at PA that many students will choose to expand their art course of study beyond the requirement. In addition, art courses suit almost all levels of experience, from the introductory term contained Art 250 course to yearlong courses in studio art.Part of what makes the depth and variation in the art course of study at PA possible is the quality facilities on campus. Here students will find sundry tools and equipment at their disposal that will help make their visions transform into great works of art. Both the Elson Art Center and the Addison Art Gallery foster artistic expression as well as interpretation of the works of others.

Pursuing career in art is something I'm incredibly nervous about, but I'd like a job hat's more an extension of my favorite pastime than a tiresome esponsibility. Though I've only taken two formal art classes at Andover— culpture with Mr. McMurray junior year and painting with Ms. Trespas as lower— I've kept busy by working on an art independent project and doodling at every given opportunity. n the future I hope to write and illustrate my own graphic novels, children's books, and comics, but in he meantime I'll just keep drawing during class.

Seniors Step On Stage

Senior recitals give musically talented seniors a chance to shine.

Always able to stun t audience with her superb talent as a musician, Alex Colaianni '03 proudl smiles for the camer

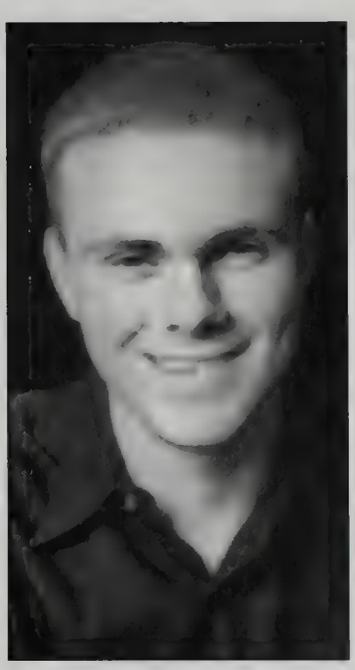

Spring term not only portents every senior's freedom from high school, but also, for many, marks the end of their artistic and musical careers at Andover. For this reason, there are Senior Recitals where musically talented seniors can show the world how all that practice has paid off. Seniors finally have their own moment to show off all that they have learned and gained through years of musical devotion at Phillips Academy. Some seniors play or sing pieces that they wrote themselves, while some seniors stick with the foolproof but nonetheless extremely difficult pieces such as Beethoven, Bach, and Chopin.

Concentrating deeply on acomlex piece during a recital, Josh Williams '03 astonishes the audience with his exceptional talent on the bass.

Creatively using her senior recital to show a bit of her culture, Kim Tran '03 poses with her instrument.

Using his own originality and talent, Andrew McManus '03 composed his own pieces to perform for his recital.

- James Chou -

Starting early on, James realized the potential of his voice. He joined a boys choir when he was eight years old, and instantly became first soprano. At PA, he was a bass singer in Cantata, chorus and Fidelio, and is considered an excellent musician. He personally thought that his recital went well considering that he achieved the ideal pitch; however, he prefers to sing in an ensamble rather than solo. James' music career is indicative of his talent and devotion to music.

- J.C. MacMillan -

J.C. started to sing in the second grade, motivated by his parents who enjoyed playing musicals on the piano. A product of his father's passion for the piano, J.C. started to play the piano four years ago. The week before his recital, he practiced nearly two hours a day, just as he does during the summer. Regarding the actual recital, J.C. thought that it went rough in the beginning, but got better towards the end. J.C. is attending USC in the fall, where he hopes to pursue music

- David Desruisseau -

David started to play the violin when he was three years old because he had seen it somewhere and wanted to try it out. He has been in Symphony for 5 years now, starting in Corelli the year before he came to Andover. Before his senior recital he practiced for about three hours everyday. David was pleased about the way his recital went; "It wasn't perfect, but there were no big mishaps." He hopes to continue to play in college.

Out With The Old...

And in with the new: a tribute to the late Evans Hall.

This past year has been our last with Evans Hall, both as a science center and a hub for the main clubs of PA. With the construction of the new science building, Evans Hall will be transformed into yet another grassy knoll. Next year, everything that Evans harbored within its concrete walls will be relocated. The beloved Loan Library will move to the Oliver Wendell Holmes Library, the clubs will be moved to various buildings on campus, and the science classes will be at the brand new Gelb Center. Hence, not only will science have a whole new look in the fall, but also such organizations as WPAA, the Potpourri, and the Phillipian will be moved to another location. The cherished graffiti'ed walls of the hallways and rooms in thebasement of Evans will be no more, and the years of history that the rooms have witnessed will be displaced. However, even though change unsettles a lot of things, it is also welcome in many ways. The battered couches and dysfunctional computers of the publication rooms will most likely be replaced with newer, better models and the new locations give everyone a clean start. Everything that has been associated with Evans Hall will be changed with the creation of the Gelb Center, but these changes are altogether more positive than negative. Although the familiar atmosphere of Evans will be missed, this big change should be appreciated because as always, it's out with the old and in with the new.

A Closer Look...Lucy Keating

When Lucy Keating came to Andover, she brought with her a strong interest in music. After four years here, this interest has grown to become a passion. In pursuit of her passion, Lucy plans to defer her admission to Williams College and spend a year focusing on music and traveling abroad. Her musical accomplishments are impressive. She has already cut her own CD and performed at a show in Los Angeles. This June, she performing at the Knitting Factory in New York City, and she hopes these performances will garner further opportunities in music world. In the fall she wants to refine her guitar and vocal skills, while also taking songwriting courses at Berkelee College of Music. While attending classes, Lucy is planning on working and saving up money for a much-anticipated trip to Australia with fellow Andover graduate Alex Jamali '03. Lucy hopes to explore the island continent as well as spend some time with her family. We lo forward to hearing great things from Lucy in the future!

Looking Foward To Tomorrow

2003 ... Oh the places they'll go!

After the pomp and circumstance of this year's graduation, after the last handshakes, hugs and farewell tears, the students of the mighty Class of 2003 will venture outside the Phillips Academy walls, and step into a new chapter of their lives. For many, the first priority after Andover is college, the illustrious term that justifies both Uppers sleeping three hours a day and Seniors working three hours a week. However, after as many as four years on Academy Hill, some students decide to explore other options before college. These brave souls choose a unique path, dictated not by the Office of College Counseling, nor the promptings of the infamous "kid across the hall who's going to Harvard", but rather by a desire to experience life.

Commonly known as "a year off", the time spent by many Phillips Academy students is anything but time off. Many students have the opportunity to travel abroad. After years of studying in Pearson or Samuel Phillips Hall, these students are more than eager to employ their linguistic prowess, and enjoy a sense of full cultural immersion in a distant land. Talented artists opt to explore and refine a passion. Be it music, dance, theater, or a myriad of other disciplines, the PA graduates who focus on their most treasured talent gain invaluable experience and skill in their chosen field. Others do what their parents have probably been telling them for years: "Get a Job!" Entering the workforce, or what some consider the "real world", gives students a new and unique perspective on the world around them, much different from the typical image of an Andover student.

Whatever the reason for a "year off", the students who partake in it gain the one thing that no school or college can provide. What exactly is that one thing? Well, it's different for everyone, and if you want to find out, you'll have to take a year off too.

Spring into Action

Spring athleetes returned to campus in April to find their fields still covered in the winter's snow, and thus causing chaos for the try-out schedules. Boys' Volleyball and Girls' Waterpolo, however, began their indoor seasons on schedule. Boys' and Girls' Crew battled the cold and snow, practicing on the Merrimack River in weather that caused their oars to be frozen by the cold water. For other teams, practices were held in the cage and the weightroom during the first three weeks of the term.

Regardless of the initial setbacks, each team's season turned out successful in its own way. The Girls' and Boys' Lacrosse teams participated in a goal-a-thon, giving all their proceeds to a cancer foundation. Girls' Tennis enjoyed a season full of victories, cookouts and foosball games. Boys' Crew dominated the NEIRA Championships, with the first boat capuring gold and the team winning the Frederick H. Sill point trophy and earning entrance into the Henley Regatta in England . Andover varsity athletes continued a long stading tradition of success both on and off the playing field. As memories of practices, team dinners and championships are taken away by this year's graduating class, underclassmen will remember their teammates while looking forward to creating their own memories.

Sprinting toward the Goal

Traditions of spirit and victory continued this year for the girls varsity lacrosse team.

April 4th, 2003: The list had been narrowed down to 23 skilled and dedicated players. Lax 2003 had begun. With more than half the team comprised of seniors, we began what would be one of the greatest seasons in recent history. Having graduated our starting goalie last spring, we had been scrambling all year to find a replacement; our concerns were instantly dismissed, however, when we found potential in Wads '06. She shared the net with Kath '03 and together with the defense, they were the backbone of our team. The defense, lead by seniors Meglet and Nyss, was able to regulate and maintain composure when the ball was in our defensive zone. Joining these two forces on the defense were Prego '03, Littlebus '03, Truds '03, Whit '04 and Sky '05, who, as a group, earned the reputation of being one of the most impenetrable defenses in New England. Balancing out this unyielding defense was our offense, lead by seniors Vdar, Riords, and Eddie. Securing our offensive line-up were returning seniors Bels, Demers, Cort and Jeanne. Together these seven seniors set a standard that next year's team is looking to challenge with the help of first-year varsity players Kin '04, Mims '04, Jess '04, Kel '05, Demers '05, Dixie '05 and Sticks '05. With the guidance of Kate Dolan and Martha Fenton, girl's lax went 13-2 on the season, were ranked 5th in New England by laxpower.com and won the Eastern Independent League championship. During the season, the girls' and boys' lacrosse programs joined forces and worked in unison to raise money for the Aiken's Children Trust Fund via a goal-a-thon. This trust fund was established to aid the children of Diane Geppi-Aikens, the women's lacrosse coach at Loyola, who is currently fighting a fatal case of brain cancer. Diane's humbling story emphasizes the strength of one's will and how, with enough heart, anything is possible.

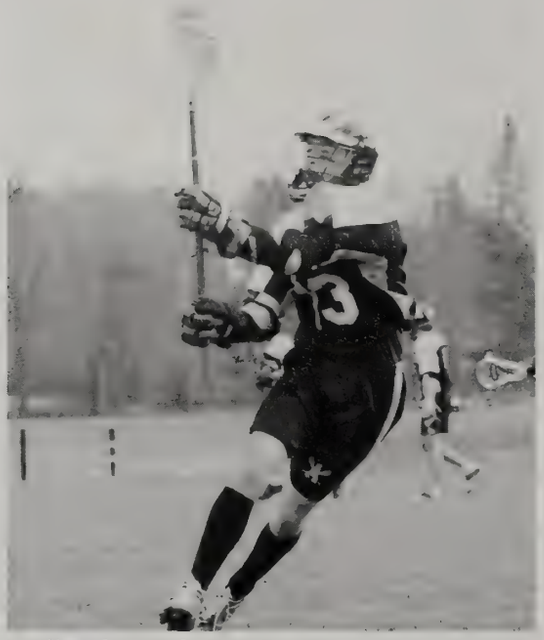

Although our final record and season accomplishments can speak to our skills, it gives no indication of the amount of heart and passion each player brought to the field every day. Whether we were dressing up for 'theme days' or holding hands in a circle around the goal, our camaraderie and unity were ever-present. Kate and Marth were always gracing the sidelines with positive encouragement and reassurance that showed their utmost faith in us. This never-ending faith, in cooperation with Diane Geppi-Aikens' story, motivated us to find our full potential and "play like it was our last game." We seniors will always carry with us the traditions of Andover lacrosse and the values our coaches have instilled in us. Next year, with ten returning players in 2004, captain-elect Whitney Kelly will lead the team with her defensive skills and unmatched devotion to the sport, as the custom of Andover lacrosse continues to burn strong.

Thank you to all of our parents and devout fans – it would have been impossible without you. Girls, take 'em to the house in 2004. Aces.

In a turnaround season, the Boys' Varsity Lacrosse team wins League Championship.

This spring break, before most spring teams had begun their seasons, the Boys' Varsity Lacrosse Team traveled to Washington DC to play some of the best teams in the country. This preseason play brought the team together and allowed us to come back home and beat Bridgeton Academy, whom we have never beaten. This season, under the leadership of nine seniors, eight of whom have been participating in the Big Blue lacrosse program during their four year careers at Andover, the Boys' Varsity Lacrosse team improved from a 4-11 record in 2002 to Eastern New England Champions in 2003. The team went 9-3, beating Exeter by one point to clinch the ENE Championship title. The 2003 squad defined the word team. Each team member, from the freshmen to the seniors, worked together to produce this successful winning season. This year marks the beginning of an era of Andover lacrosse dominance thanks to Coach Dugan and the work the team put in this year. The developing skills, leadership and unity of the underclassmen will carry over into future season, producing many more memorable seasons like the successful one we had this year.

Girls' Softball had a Succesful Developing Season.

Andover softball ended its season with a 7- 5 record—including one win (and one loss) against Exeter. The team was young (nine of the nineteen players were freshmen) and the experience gained from its losses will undoubtedly lead to success in the next few years. Spirit and energy abounded in every individual and the team proved its resilience time and time again under the leadership of Captain Ashley May '03, seniors Aneesa Sayall, Taryn Zucker and Kelly Lannan and the indefatigable pitcher Danielle Collins '04. Andover placed fourth in the Big East Invitational tournament, leaving room to grow under the future leadership of current uppers Danielle Collins, Devon Dickerson and Dorothy Voorhees. The disparity of experience between the team's youngest and oldest players was bridged by a consistent optimism and jollity which lit up Isham Field on even the coldest and rainiest of spring days. It was both a pleasure and an honor to be a member of the 2003 Andover softball team.

Boy's Varsity Baseball spent there third year dominating the league.

For the most part the Andover Baseball Club had an excellent season, highlighted by some amazing individual performances on a consistant basis throughout the spring. Because of the poor weather during the season a number of games were cancelled during the early weeks, making every game very important. We understood the importance of every game and as a result we were undefeated in league play until the last regular season double header against Tabor. I have never been so proud to be a part of a team where people always competed and performed to the best of their abilities, which make even more dissappointing to know that we were not able to perform during the championship game against Exeter. Some of the highlights for me were knowing that four of our players were named to the all-conference team, the no hitter that TK threw against Exeter during the first game of a double header, and coming back from behind to beat Exeter in the second half of the double header. In all it was a season of many highs and great team and individual performances, but the season certainly was not fulfilled because of losing in the championship game of the tournament and then in addititon to that not playing in the Andover/Exeter game because of rain.

Boy's Varsity Tennis witnesses Coach Hodgson's last season.

The 2003 tennis season marks the end of an era at Phillips Academy for the Boys Varsity A tennis team: Mr. Tom Hodgson is stepping down as coach after his second tour of duty as the Boys head coach. Over the years Mr. Hodgson's leadership and dedication set the highest personal and athletic standards for his players. Future tennis teams won't come to know his very special guidance, inspiration, and kindness as well as the Jolly Ranchers he always brought to practices and games. Mr. Hodgson will be much missed. The team also says farewell to two seniors: Captain Simon Hawkins and Joe Musumeci. Hawkins, described as "a doubles phenomenon," along with four-year letterman Musumeci, will also be missed greatly.

This season they led the Big Blue tennis team to a powerful 6-4 record in what has been described as the hardest schedule in the league. With junior standout Michael Li at #1, the team crushed rival Exeter for the first time in three years by a score of 6-1. The victory assured the team's selection in 2003 at the New England Invitational Tennis Association Team Tournament. The honors, however, continued when all seven members of the team were selected to play in the New England Prep School Invitational Tennis Tournament. Michael Li represented the team in singles. Doubles were represented by Captain Hawkins and Joe Musumeci, Russel Dykema '04 and Adam Draper '04, and Dan Wagman '06 and Jon Weigel '05. It was a great way for Coach Hodgson to cap off his great career and a privilege for the 2003 team to be part of it.

This spring saw a growth of mind and body on the Girl's Varsity Crew team.

The 2003 Andover Girls' team sure has heart! The season started off with a bang in late March when, despite the snow, enough rowers for 2 boats came back early to campus to practice for the final days of spring break. Though the cold wet weather persisted for much of the season, nothing dampened the spirit of the team.

The novice boats, as the starting base of the crew program, are where many future varsity rowers learn the basics. This year, both G4 and G5 were incredibly patient when they were stuck on land in the afternoon for either weather reasons or bus complications. Once they made it out to the boat house, the girls developed their skills as rowers and their friendships as teammates. G3's season was full of spirit, and it showed when they placed two seats ahead of their original seat going into Interschols, qualifying for finals and finishing sixth place. All of the athletes in G2 worked very hard, and it showed with their third place finish at Interschols.

Like G2, G1 had a very strong season. Every other girl on the boat had something special to bring to the team, and their devotion and drive to succeed as athletes and as a boat set an example for the rest of the team. One of the most exciting and sometimes most upsetting parts of rowing is its unpredictability. Although our fifth place finish at Interschols was very disappointing, it is by no means a reflection of the endurance and dedication to our season. Luckily, six of the eight rowers on G1 will be returning, and they are sure to have a great season ahead of them!

Boy's Varisty Crew dominates Interschols; first boat wins gold, second and third recieve silver.

The boys' crew program was determined this year to say the least. Coming off a year in which both the first and second boats finished a disappointing fifth place at Interschols the rowers this year seemed to walk with a greater purpose. The first boat became the first Andover boat to capture the Dent Oars in consecutive years and the second boat looked very quick in beating Kent by 6 seconds. The following week the boys went to the five boat Exeter Invitational where the second boat continued their winning ways beating second place Exeter by 4 seconds. The first boat lost a close race to Exeter in the final 500m and placed second out of the five crews. After that it was all business for the first varsity boat. Salisbury went down to the blue, then St. Paul's, Exeter, Tabor, and NMH. The second boat looked to continue their early season success with a win over Salisbury. However, a close 0.5 second loss to St. Paul's was followed by a loss to Exeter. The second boat pulled things together with a win over NMH to set them up for the New England Championships.

At the NEIRA Championships, the boys' third boat, which had a tremendous season, got things started with a great race in their final. They finished a half second behind Exeter in second place in one of the most exciting boat races of the day. The second boat had a strong race and captured silver for the Big Blue. The final race of the day proved to be the most exciting. In what was a see-saw battle between two deserving crews the Andover first boat beat Exeter by 17 hundredths of a second to capture the Frederick H. Sill Bowl for the NEIRA Championship, the first time since 1988.

Special mention goes out to the three seniors in the second boat; Bob Yamartino, Alex Minasian, and Tara Anderson and the nine members of the boys first boat; Evan Panich, Garrett Kirk, Sam Beattie, Jake Ginsberg, JC MacMillan, Will England, Greg McKallagat, Taylor Washburn, and Sarah Sherman. Congratulations to all on a great season.

Seniors and key underclassmen lead golf to a breakthrough season.

From the outset of the season, the 2003 Andover Golf squad welcomed their under-dog status among their prep school contemporaries. Andover hit the ground running against perennially competitive Holderness. With assistant coaches, senior leadership from Pucillo and Jayme Mendal '03, and strong play from Andover's top two guns, Kazickas Cup winner Feldmann '05 and rookie phenomenon Watson '06 carried the team to a 4-4 record culminating with a victory in the annual Lovell Cup Championship.

The team defeated healthy competition all season following their Holderness triumph, toppling BB&N, shutting out Rivers 12-0, and regaining their match play championship against Exeter from the previous years' contest.

Feldmann's low score of 75 at challenging Crumpin' Fox Golf Club and Watson's 78 at the beautiful Portsmouth Country Club are indicative of the squad's immense young talent.

The team will look hopefully into the future as Feldmann assumes the front seat of the Andover rally wagon as next year's captain. A number of capable returning letterman and promising newcomers will make the 2004 squad a force to be reckoned with in New England High School golf.

This was the inaugural year girls' varsity waterpolo's spring season.

During this 2002-2003 season, the Girls' Waterpolo team proved to be very successful despite the move from the fall to the spring. The start of the season was a little hard as the team suffered many losses to players who already had spring sports. The number of players was few in the beginning, and the season looked like it was going to be a rough one. The team, however, stepped up to the challenge with the never-ending support from the coaches, Ms. Meyer and Ms. Carter, and the returning seniors, Krissy Conner, Kim Walker, and Tracey Zicherman. The team also had a number of talented under classmen that certainly helped a great deal. The team was also very fortunate in receiving a number of very talented, enthusiastic new members to the team, including senior Ryan Faurot. While the record board does not represent the success the team had, the girls proved themselves in the effort and determination. Playing with a small squad is difficult, but the girls were able to hold their own in a lot of the games. While a lot of the games were lost, each game was played with teamwork and after most games, the team could walk away and say that we had played our best. The team looks to next year with optimism as rising seniors Kristina Chang, Susannah Gund, April Franz, Amy Lippe, and captain-elect Kate Page will take charge and continue the tradition of excellence.

Boy's Varsity Volleyball develops from a ragtag group to runners up in the league tournament.

Above: New commer to the team Sumair Mahmood '03 sets the ball for a teammate. Note the tied score in the background; the Blue played exceptionally well under pressure this year.

The team has had a spectacular season this year. According to the coach, Clyfe Beckwith, this year's team is the best in the boys' volleyball program's history. The team started off as a random assembly of athletes. James Chou '03, Jeff Chung '03, Sumair Mahmood '03, and Roland Peer '03 were the only returning players on the Varsity team. Luckily, we were joined by Italian professional player Francesco Cremonesi '03. His experience and leadership qualities unified this group into a cooperating team. Newcomers to volleyball Hendrik Elkenhans '03 and Abhi Eswarappa '04 rounded off the varsity squad. Elkenhans became one of our setters and constantly surprised our opponents and ourselves with effort and hustle. Eswarappa became a middle hitting monster by the end of the season, rivaling captain Chou, the other middle hitter, in blocks and kills. Chung's unlimited energy and enthusiam kept the team going in long five game matches with no substitutions. Mahmood emerged this season as an unstoppable powerhouse. Peer, by far the quickest player, always caught the opposing team off guard with his weak side hits. The varisty squad developed into a true team this season. Especiall the last few games of the season, teamwork dramatically increased the to incredible heights. In our second to game against NMH, Andover was beh with a score of 2-0. As soon as the teamv kicked in, Andover started playing team, gained momentum, and won t games in a row to take the match. It truly a great experience that served reminder to the joys of the game. immense talent was tried during their game against Choate when they lost i exciting five game match. In our last g of the season, in the final tournament places second, losing to Choate ir exciting five game match.

It has truly been an honor ser as captain of boys' volleyball. Nothir as satisfying as being part of a team works together as well as we have. Loo back at the beginning of the season, I ca believe that we have progressed so m in such little time. ## BOYS

I have been a member of the Phillips Academy Spring Track team for four years and never before have I seen the determination and resolve exhibited by my fellow teammates this past spring. We lost many senior athletes from last year such as Pablo Durana, Derek Bass, and J. T. Sims just to name a few. I as well as several of the coaches doubted whether the team would be as tough and as deep as years past. Our performance at Interschols dissolved our fears and anxieties. Although we began with two losses, our only two losses in the last four years, we gained momentum throughout the season and claimed the New England Championship for the third year in a row. Kanyi Maqubela '03, Jack McCallum '03, and Gavin Kuangparichat '03 contributed well in the high jump, two mile, and the mile relay, respectively, as well as in many other events, and they leave it up to their protégés to continue the legacies. Knef King '04, Jeffrey Peña '04, Adam Kapor '04, Josh Wolfe '04, O'Shea Galan '04, and next season's captain Anwell Lanfranco '04, as well as many others, will undoubtedly make major contributions. The success of our team this year was not only due to the talent of our senior athletes, but also to the spirit and determination of the rising underclassmen and JV competitors. I am certain that next year's team will be a force to be reckoned with.

GIRLS

The girl's track team truly showed thier strength this year. The season started out a little rocky but the girls soon found thier rhythm beating Andover High in a close meet. They continued thier domination in the next few meets, easily beating Cuching and coming in second at the Andover Boosters Invitaional. At interschols, the most important meet of the season, we ended up in second place to a strong Exeter team. The high jumpers really set the tone for the girls with Cassie Tognoni '05 and Kasey O'Laughlin '05 placing first and second, respectively. Andover was also well represented in the throws with Erin O'Hern '03 scoring two key second places in the shot put and discus. The runners pulled thier weight as well, with both relays coming in second. Courtney McBride '03 scored in both the 200m and the 400m while Katie Dlesk '03 also scored in the 400m and again in the 300m hurdles. Perhaps the most impressive performance of the day was Lissy Robie '04 running all three distance races and scoring in two! She was helped out by the ever-versatile Moore who got 3rd in the 3000m. A week later we headed up to Exeter for some revenge but once again the weather interferred. We lost by 5 points, which is a huge improvement from the 30 point deficit at Interschols. The team will lose seniors McBride, O'Hern, Moore, Dlesk, Loui Itoh, Ashley Corneau and Kaitlin Ainsworth. There is so much talent in the returners that I have no doubt that next season will be just a great, especially under the leadership of captin-elect Lissy Robie. It was a fantastic season ladies, and good luck next year!

Reaching dangerous Speeds

The Big Blue Cycling A Team captured the New England Prep School League Chapmpionship this spring.

PA's 2003 cycling season was fantastic. Not only did the team triple in size from last year, but the varsity "A" boys won the New England High School Cycling League Championship. They also took 1st as a team overall in the season. There were tremendous performances all around, including: 3rd overall in the league's individual classification by Captain Peter Stetson, and several 1st place finishes by Thatcher Clay '04, Dave Morse '04, and Peter Stetson '03. Piotr Brzezinski '03 came within seconds of breaking the team's individual time trial course record, set by 2003 National Collegiate Champion Chris Hedges in 1999. The girls and the B boys were all new to the sport this year, and made tremendous improvements. At the Exeter cup the "B" boys took first. The girls will be quite strong for next season as they learned much during their first year on the bike. The team will miss departing seniors, Brzezinski, Chiu, and Stetson, but will continue with awesome power and experience returning to the road next spring. Coach Derek "my legs felt tired, but I won the race anyway" Williams will also be away, on sabatical, but Coach Thayer "let's race up this hill" Zaeder will take over with the help of Henry "the machine" Willmer.

Varsity Ultimate Frisbee enjoyed a year of comedy and victory under the leadership of co-captains Wessler and Navkol.

The ultimate season this year was surely one to remember. With the loss of star long Scout Kingsley due to a devastating injury to his pinkey toenail, the team was in need of a 6' 6" giant asian to take his place. Justin Koh auditioned for the position, but after seeing his incredible catching skills, we knew that he would be needed at a different place on or off the field. Colin Liotta took the crown instead, dominating the air above throughout the season.

Several other new additions to the team included Chris Skipper, Julia Totosy De Zepetnik, Nate Huvelle, Min Kim, Nicholas A. Pappadopoulos, Darren S. DeFreeuw, and Duncan Dwyer. These new talents learned the art of ultimate with surprising speed and ease.

With solid handling throughout the season, co-captain Viraj Navkol, Rohit Acharya, Chris Lanterman, and Alex Limpaecher showed excellent leadership and control of the field.

Arsalon Ahmed, Allegra Funston, Mac King, and Martin Quinones also astounded us all with their amazing dumps.

As our coach, Chris, so elegantly stated after our shutout victory over Exeter, "I don't think I'm alone when I say that this team is by far the best team in the world. Ever. Of any sport. I'm not even kidding. Fine, let's just go to Dairy Queen."

Next year's captains, Martin Quinones and Rohit Acharya, will surely lead the team to great heights. We can only wish them the best of luck, and hope they have half as good a season as Andover Ultimate 2003.

Signs of Spring

Seniors and underclassmen alike enjoyed a laid back term of intermural ultimate frisbee.

Each term, about forty PA students decide to "play Cluster," which is the term used to describe PA's inter-Cluster sports teams, who gather on the great lawn, in the gym, or in Siberia to play soccer in the fall, basketball in the winter, or ultimate frisbee in the spring. Though the teams are constituted of many Seniors, underclassmen also take advantage of the opportunity to enjoy the outdoors and have fun with their peers.

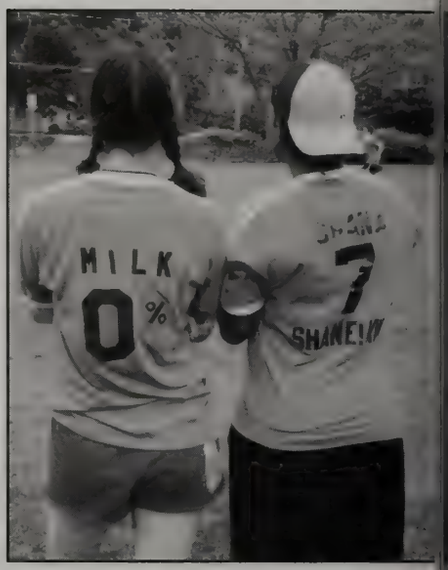

After a fall and winter of Pine Knoll dominance in both soccer and basketball, West Quad South, West Quad North, Abbot and Flagstaff, and their scrub teams, entered the spring Cluster season ready to take on PKN.

After weeks of strong shows by each team, the field was widdled down to two teams who would play eachother in the Cluster Championships: West Quad North, and for the third time this year, Pine Knoll. After an exciting and close game, WQN ended PKN's streak of Cluster Championships to become the Spring 2003 Cluster Ultimate Champs.

At the end of year All School Meeting, Abbot senior Etzerson Philitas was awarded the awarded the Harold J. Sheridan Award for "contributing most to the intramural athletic program" and Pine Knoll recieved Parker-Sprague Goss Trophy, which is awarded to the cluster "whose "A" teams have finished highest in the standings for the entire year."

Whether it's shown by their wearing personalized t-shirts to class, cheering for their teammates, or playing in the games, cluster athleetes show love and appreciation for the games they play.

A few months ago, students eagerly arrived on campus with the hopes of a promising spring. Now, two months and eight days later, most will agree that their expectations were adequately met. Spring 2003 was a unique twist on the norm, a description that aptly fits this year's senior class. From boom boxes and Dan Koh's "Passing of the Chair" ceremony in Garver to puddle jumping, Andover took on the task of personalizing and tailoring spring term to this year's student body. The seniors of 2003 unhesistatingly assumed the responsibility of leaving their mark on Academy Hill. Whether it was through the production of the controversial Vagina Monologues, scoring that crucial goal in lacrosse or generously filling in the underclassmen on Andover's keys to success, this year's senior class forever left their footprint on Andover's terrain.

For most spring term allows a student to bring a chapter of their life to a closing. All of fall and winter term, students struggle to find their place academically, athletically, musically or artistically; and finally in the spring, students seem to fall right into their respective places. By spring term, students have mastered the art of Andover, thus allowing them to excel to their potential. This notion held true for this year's student body as the talent present on campus surpassed that of previous years. Theater explored unchartered territory, while sports teams dominated on the fields, courts and turf -- helping to make this spring stand out.

Starting on April Fools day, the Andover community gathered inside the Cochran Chapel, gearing themselves for spring term. As the days became weeks, spring term was well under way. Every Monday, former Stowe House members dressed in ponchos and sombreros, dubbing the once monotonous day "Mexican Monday." As for every other day, Andover continued to bustle with relaxed juniors, hyper lowers, stressed out uppers and crazy seniors. Though each had their own agenda, their objective for spring term remained constant – adding that spring into their steps.

After weeks and weeks of rain and overcast skies, campus was overrun with preparations for underclassmen departure and Phillips Academy's 225th commencement ceremony. During exam week students worked hard to finish their academic commitments as to expedite the beginning of summer. As juniors, lowers and uppers scrambled make arrangements to head home, seniors kicked off a week of celebration. On June 8th, the senior class gathered on the Great Lawn to close on chapter of their life and commence the next. As the sun made an unexpected appearance, the Class of 2003 bid farewell to Academy Hill.

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

Sunday, June 8, 2003

Barbara Landis Chase

Head of School

My first inspiration for this talk arrived on an afternoon in February. Perhaps I should not dwell on the fact th at the time, I was looking out on a warm and sunny California afternoon, while you were here (just in front of t trudging along a path cut through deep snow. On sabbatical, I was sitting in my Berkeley apartment beginning to rea book called THE POLITICAL CRISIS OF THE 1850's. The very first sentence read, "This is not the book I set ou write."

That sentence made me sit up and take notice, and it drew me back to Andover. Why? Because I had been, all t subconsciously, thinking of you on that afternoon, wondering how you were and thinking ahead to this very day, w we would be here, celebrating the final ritual of your life at Andover. I was thinking, too, about my talk on this occasi And it seemed to me that here was a text of sorts.

"This is not the book I set out to write." I thought, "How true that is." I have read such reflections from writ often—that they have one idea and, in the process of researching, or even beginning to write about it, they find anot idea that takes them by the shoulders and says, "No, don't write about that idea; write about me, instead."

Still, you might ask, how can that be the starting point for a commencement speech? Well, I want to pose to the idea that living a life can be likened to writing a book or perhaps, more properly, writing many chapters of a bo We do not always write what we set out to write. We do not, for all our plans and hopes, always end up doing what we set out to do. No, life does not roll itself before us like a red carpet beckoning us to tread straight and effortlessly ahead. It is not by accident that we so often compare life to a road with many turns, rou places, and even dead ends.

So, how can we take comfort in the face of an existence that seems so unpredictable, so out of our control? The answer to that question might offer appropriate send-off for you, I thought. I wondered whom I might consult to help answer that question, and I thought about biographers.

Biographers above all others should be able to help, for they get the sense of a life lived as a whole. After the fact, they can make out the shape of a l the turnings, the false starts, the obsessions, the patterns that connect seemingly disconnected acts of love or retribution, courage or cowardice. A biographer mi just be able to make some sense out of the seeming randomness of life. So I decided to consult the two finest biographers I know.

The first is Stacy Schiff of Phillips Academy's Class of 1978. Her biography of Vera Nabokov, the wife of Vladimir Nabokov, won the Pulitzer Prize seve years ago. So I went to New York to talk with Stacy, and I asked her first about her own life and work.

She remembered that during her time at Andover she had thought that she wanted to become an architect. But two of her English teachers, Elwin Syl and Philip Zaeder kept writing comments on her papers about how much they enjoyed reading her pieces, about her talent as a writer. And later, their encouragem washed back over her, even at the remove of years, and helped her decide to become a writer.

Stacy has written that, "At its most basic level, all biography is connect-the-dots; like impudent children, we [biographers] all attempt it differently." wondered what for Stacy might constitute the dots—the turning points—in her own life? In a letter she sent me the next week, she wrote, "As for the logic of liv I do think this exists primarily for biographers, rarely for the rest of us, and never at all in the thick of things. Every once in a while the dots do connect—from Elv Sykes and Philip Zaeder's indulgent comments to the deadline I am avoiding this afternoon, for example. Another reason I owe it all to Andover."

So it sounded to me as if Stacy Schiff were telling us to listen to the voices of the people who know us and care about us, to let them guide us, to take th prodding (even their remembered prodding) to heart. Because their voices may well set us off in new and promising directions. Store that away.

Then I went to my second source. Another gifted biographer, she is a current resident of Phillips Academy, and one of your teachers, Kathleen Dalton. J this past fall, Ms. Dalton published the book, Theodore Roosevelt: A Strenuous Life, reviewed as "a splendid, bully" book that brings "fresh findings" to TR's life sat down with Kathy a couple of weeks ago and asked her to talk with me, from her perspective as a biographer, about what gives logic and meaning to our lives

She would have us remember that we make a serious mistake if we see life through external accomplishments – SAT scores or salary, or fame." A biographer, and as a teacher, she always looks for the things that are not so visible, for the "real person beneath the image," for, as she called them, "the creat juices," "the motivating passion"... "To know a person is to see the glow of their inner light," she told me.

Soon, we turned to talk of our life and work here at Andover. It had been just a few days earlier that Archbishop Tutu had preached in Cochran Chapel a then stayed on for lunch and conversation. Kathy recalled a moment from that occasion to illustrate her point about motivating passion. A student had asked t Archbishop how he had found the courage to stand on the front lines against apartheid when such formidable forces were arrayed against him. He replied, "Well, c of the things that I used to say to God was: 'Look here, God, if I am down here doing your work, you had better jolly-well look after me.'" In that moment, we knew without doubt that his FAITH gave this great man the conviction to know what he must do and the courage to do it.

As we sat in my office that afternoon, Kathy Dalton and I talked about how important it has been is for us, your teachers, to help you to believe principles, in service to the larger world, in a power beyond yourself. Because if you, like the Archbishop, hold strong convictions and have faith, you will find t courage to act for the good.

But even that is not enough, for we have, so far, left other people out of the equation. And surely we have tried to teach you here that you need other peo to live a good life. Archbishop Tutu had taken this point as the theme for his sermon. "A person is a person through other people," he had told us. "None of us c ever be self sufficient. We were made for interdependence. We need one another." Perhaps this is one of the most fundamental truths of any life: Vera Naboko or Theodore Roosevelt's or the lives of their biographers, Stacy Schiff and Kathleen Dalton; or Archbishop Tutu's life or yours or mine. Our lives are made who are given meaning, are blessed by the lives of other people and our need of them. And that is true not only for a single life, but for the life of a community like th one.

Last night at Baccalaureate, with soft rain and mist just beyond those great doors, we sat in the shelter of Cochran Chapel, in the comfort of being togeth The messages and music transported us, brought peace to our souls and love to our hearts. We were, we knew, in that place together for the last time. And the lo we felt was not just for family and close friends but for the whole community gathered around us. We passed the light to one another, and we raised our lighted candl In that moment, a soft and ancient hue transformed the darkness and reminded us of our richest blessing as humans: our communion with one another.

As you go forth:
Take COMFORT in the knowledge that the people you love and the people who love you will be there to help you connect the dots in your life.
Take COURAGE from your own faith and convictions – strengthened, as they are by other people – especially the ones surrounding you today.

And finally,
Take our BLESSING with you as you go.
Go in peace.
Go in love.
Godspeed.
